

23. Mart 1670 R. Se. 10 8 (color) SUPP 57/62/AX Not! Supp 57 162/A CARRET

.... OR A
O
CHARI Whi pm Every And to Therfor them IR IV

PIE

Da

parrationem virorum nominatorum empervalit PIETAS PARISIENSIS Quel: 39,2

OR A SHORT DESCRIPTION

OF THE PIETIE AND

CHARITIE COMONLY EXERCISED IN PARIS

Which represents in short the pious practises of the whole Catholike

Tho: CHURCH, Roydon.

By THOMAS CARRE Confessiour of Sion

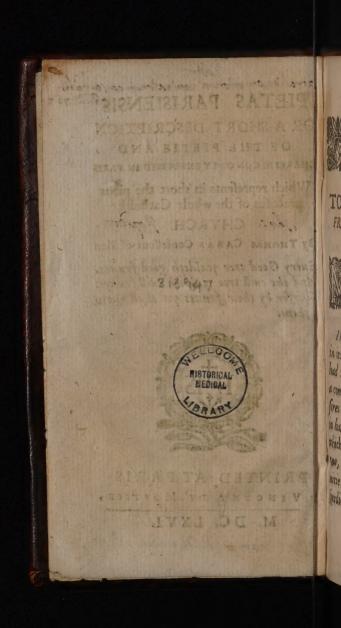

Euery Good tree yealdeth good fruites. And the enill tree yealdeth enill fruites. Therfor by their fruites you shall know them.

PRINTED AT PARIS
By VINCENT DV MOVILERS

M. DC. LXVI.

Dorbinam stulk Despiciant. Provis. 4.

TO HIS MYCH HOND FRIEND W. D. ESQVIRE THE SE.

Vch Hond deare St

I had yours of the 20 of May in its due tyme: and noe sooner had I received it (such power of a commande have your civile desires over me) but I tooke pen in hand to returne you an answer which had bene longe agoe with you, had not my continual insignmitie rendered me litle fitt for speedie complyance,

A ij

I am not without a deepe resentment, to observe that you flill permitt inconsiderable doubts, cast in your way by I know not whom, retarde you from fixing Vpon, what alone can make you eternally happie. You say in particular that you have mett with so many loofe and beaftly cases among Catholike authours, that you have much adoe to beleeve that holinesse is practifed, where so much licenciousnesse is taught. But I praye, are they taught in our councells? Doe you finde them in our Decretalls? Haue you heard them in our Pulpets? Meete you with them in our Catechismes? What are you Startled at? If the braines of some few riotous children run ouer into extrauigances, must the good, mother have their excesses pinned on them ;

them ?
condend

Must for a like disco

wer for ingenuable.

forme ditie

Imust always by that is holy who pl washed House her sleeue, while she neither teaches them, approues, nor conceales them? Nay while she expressly, condemnes, and prohibites them with a heavie curse vpon them? Must the good wheate be reproued for a litte chaffe? Or Christs feild be disowned, because the enemye ouer so wed cockle in it? This your ingenuitie will not indee reasonable. And therfore, what I have formerly said; (to witt , that sanctitie is a marke of the Catholike Romane church exclufiuely to all other churches) I must still persiste in. Yes, she hath alwayes bene eminently knowne by that bage to all the world. She is holy in her heade Iesus Christ, who placed her vpon the rocke, and washed her in his owne pretious bloode: she is holy in that koly A iii

e ne fill i, cafe

hom,

etercular

nany Ca-

haue inesse

licen-

oraye, ocells?

ecre-

n our

e 7016

f some

d,1110=

ned one

Spirit who was fent to sanctifie her, and to teach her all truth: Holy in God the father, authour of all holynesse, to whom she is dedicated: Holy in all her doctrine, in her (acrifices, in her Sacraments; in her discipline; in her pious members, à mongst whom there is neuer wanting numbers of persons famous for sanctitie. Holy in fine, in her continuall prayers to God, and charitable practises towards her poore neighbour. Which two alone I will onely Vrge at prefent, as being aboundantly satisfactorie, if compared to your cold practifes, to make appeare where charitie is in her raigne, and consequently, where sanctitie is to be found, since it is indeede noe other thinge then charitie. Non S. I neither know, then ch which that, the

the land ritas of

daritie ge but it comp

our ne for his and or because mande the enj

their land di

nor seeke for, any other holinesse then charitie it selfe. It is that which is the end of the lawe; that, the fulnesse of the lawe; that the lawe it selfe. Lex Dei charitas est, faith S. Augustine. The scripture commands nothing but charitie; nor reproues it anythinge but cupiditie; and in these two it compriseth all Christian moralls. And as charitie is all, so all that it is conversant about, is God and our neighbour; God, to love him for his owne infinite goodnesses and our selves, and neighbours, because it is his pleasure and commande. Observe, I beseech you, in the ensuing discourse whether we or you make it more absolutly their businesse to comply with these two duties; and thence you will easily indge on which side charities A iiij

Etifie ush:

thour the is Etri-

acra= her

bers litie.

nuall itable

onebouns

pared make

n her where e it is schaknows

that is sanctitie and holynesse resides: and at the same tyme conclude with S. Augustine, against your selfe indeede, but to your advantage, that there can be noe charitie (that is sanctitie) amono you, because you hate Vnitie. Non habét charitatem, qui Ecclesiæ non diligunt vnitatem. And againe, they have noe charitie, who are cutt of from the communion of the Catholike church. Non habent charitatem qui ab Ecclesiæ Catholicæ communione præcisi sunt. de Bap. contra dona. l. 3. c.16. Be cause, saithehe, in the same place it is the proper gifte of Catholike Vnitie. Out of the Catholike communitie then noe Vnitie: without Vnitie, noe charitie, if charitie be wanting all things els profit not assures then, de

munion

gnes, raigni

dently armes,

Tale

affures S. Paule. Cast your selfe then, deare S. into the bosome, communion, and vnion of the Catholike church, where charitie truly raignes, and where vnder her happie raigne, the least things prosit to eternall life. Thither are you ardently in viteed. There, with open armes, are you cordially expected, by

Hon S.

Iuly 20. 1666,

resse

con-

ainst

304X

noe mong

Von

cle.

em.

chathe

orch. qui

Bap.

Be place white

0111= thout

ne be t not Your most humble ass. and best wishing scruant THOMAS CARRE.

Bulbander A. 0 hap ye. life fati ris oft

*

8577 B 8 1

OF THE PRESENT
PETIE OF PARIS
THE FIRST ARTICLE.

O the glorie of God, and the Catholike church; the honour of that noble towne, where I had the happines to passe thirtie three yeares, the one halfe of my life; and to afford you full satisfaction, I will make Paris appeare the short mappe of the vaste Catholike world, and by that smale parte, give 12 The pietie of Paris. the idea of the whole.

Pietie in generall, as S. Augustine tells vs, is the true worshippe of the true God, who, as he faith also, is not worshipped, saue onely by charitie. Now charitie has two respects, or chasty eyes two thinges alone, God incomparably aloue all thinges; and for him, our neighbour as our selues. To describe then the pietie of Paris, is noe other thinge then to declare what is practifed there, in order to God and our neighbour, wherin the accomplishmet of the whole lawe consists.

And againe, as the accomplishment of the lawe confifts in two duties; so the ac-

the

The pietie of Paris. 13 complishers therof may be reduced to two classes, the Pastours, and the people.

the

ne-

tie

hef-

2-

en

ole

n-

111-

10

Of the pietie, of the Priests and people in the daylie service of God.

ARTICLE II.

what may not be faid with truth of the excellent Pastours of Paris, in otder to these two duties? They are all, generally, knowne to be men of exemplarie liues, and sound learning, being the most of them Bachelours, Licentiates or Doctours of the famous facultie of Sorbonne, Their places are gi-uen to their merites, not purchaced with moneys: and their whole endeuours are imployed to fute their liues and actions to the dignitie of their places. They have learnt of S. Gregorie, that Pastour of Pastours, in earth, vnder the sourceaigne Pastour Iesus Christ in Heauen, that the guidance of soules is the Arte of Artes. They know that their worke is not to saue their owne soules alone, but those of many, the highest thinge that man is capable of, being indeede the same for which the Almightie father, sent his onely sonne, as he also sent them with this minace, that if any of their bocke perish by their fault ferua ayre

which by fund

he wi

hands

Audi

holy and c

the pr

vilde

PP.)

the c

Vin

yle a

mean their subjective

The pietie of Paris is he will require his bloud at the hands ef the watch man. Hence it is, that they vse so diligent studie at the learned Sorbon, and els where. So many holy conferences (a bleffed and common practife among the primitive fathers of the wildernesse (Vt in collationibus PP.) renewd in Paris among the clergie-men by good Mr Vincents Zeale, which they vse as well in in way of preferuatiue against the badd ayre of the world, to which they are still exposed by the necessitie of their function, as a most effectuall meanes to perfect them in their holy profession. The subjects of these conferences are alwayes some vertue or

Dur

are

ines

oitie

aue

hat

rth,

Pa-

ien,

s the

now

aue

but

hest

able ame

fa-

eas

this heir

aule

The piotie of Paris. other. Wherin they treate of their nature, of their particular actes, of the motiues to acquire them, and the meanes to putt them in practife &c. Togeither with the obligation of their divine state, as well in relation to God as their neighbour. Hence too are fo many heauenly Meditations vsed in their spirituall retreates, (which is frequent among them) to fitt themselves to that sacred and dreadfull function. The lawe of God is the subject of these their Meditations, day and night, to begett worthy ad fublime thoughtes of God in their owne harts, to be conueved afterwards into the harts of their hearers hauir ne , pietie,

pietie, esteem nard agoo dere, fi felue: other

The chiel duties weake

to bin bring a feeke their der the

had

The pietie of Paris. 17 having learnt of S. Augustine, that the truest begining of pietiesis to have a most worthy esteeme of God; and of S. Bernard, that the true waye of agoodPastours proceedinge, is prius infundere quam effundere, first to powre in, to themfelues, then to powre out to others on mass and the

They had reade in Ezechiel, that it was the Pastours dutie to strengthen what was weake; to heale what was sicke, to binde Vp what was broken; to bring agains what was cast away; seeke what was lost: and thence their whole studie is to render themselues skilfull phyfitions.

eof

CLI-

to nes

&c.

iga-

,25

25

00 le-

iri-

n is

to red

The

ect

ons,

ett

tes

rts,

rds

They reflected of what they had heard from the great 18 The pietie of Paris.

Doctour of the Gentils, that they, as well as he, with due proportion, in qualitie of Christs Ministers; were to accomplishe, those thinges which want of the passions of Christ, in their flesh, for his bodie which is the Church; to witt, by applying the merits and medicinall grace purchaced by his payenfull passion, to the poore sinfull foules of their flocke, by detiueing into them those fountaines of grace, conferred by their ministerie in the sacraments of Baptisme, Pennance, the blefsed Euchariste &c. And they apprehend noe care and industrie of theirs sufficiently ans werable to such high functions.

The the far looked rable preist,

men, is thinges
that he

fices for ple, as numb

good locieti (lome

ding to of the proch

Altars noone ce and

their

The pietie of Paris. 19 They called to mynd what the faid S. Paule taught, and looked vpon it with a venerable astonishment every high preist , saith he, taken from among men, is appointed for men, in those thinges which appartagne to God, that he may offerre gifts and sacrifices for sinnes, as well for the people, as also for himselfe. Hence numbers of priests, which the good Pastours take into their societies, and communities (some 40. or 50. some 100. some more, some fewer, accor ding to the vaste numbers of their Parishoners) approch daylie to the facred Altars from morning till noone, with humble reuerence and veneration, to answere their peoples expectations

ue

10 ges

his

ch;

ace full

full

de-

un-

red

fa=

en-

ari

end of ver-

15.

20 The pietie of Paris.

oth

Go

peo

Pari

mot

利 ce (

CXD

and (25

Aln

pose

101

and deuotions, who concurre with them in a sweete harmonie, to offerre vo their vowes. If this true, cleane, and vnbloudie facryfice which the Prophete Malachye, foretold, be offered to God in enery place, from the rifing of the fun to the going downe, seconded by the facryfice of the lipps and hartes of the pious people, serue for the happie imploymet of the whole forenoone, the afternoone wants not its part neither, which is daylie performed in the euenfonge and compline, fo that the church dores are as rarely shutt vp in Paris, all the weeke longe, as I have rarely observed them open in London, faue onely one day

The pietie of Paris. 21 in the weeke, as tho all the other dayes, they had noe God in england to be publikly ferued in their Parish churches. Besides these generall pious practifes of the people, which they exercise euery day in the weeke all Paris ouer, there is scarce one day in the yeare in which there is not some particular solemnitie, at one church, or monasterie or an other, to which there is great confluence of people, by reason of fome great preacher : or the exposition of the B. Sacramet and pardons to be gayned (as it appeares by a certaine Almanacke made of sett purpose to direct pious people to the said solemnities) and res.

110=

VII-

old,

ery

the se-

OUS

ppie

ore-ants

hich

the e, so

re as

, all

haue en in day

22 The pietie of Paris:

as there is noeday passes with out publicke service done to God; so there is noe houre of the day, or night, in which Gods prayses are not sunge in Paris (to say nothinge of what is done by the multitude of Catholike Christians in America, where our night is their day)

is p

from

the

all :

10

day

m eulo

The Oratorians begin the diuine office at 7. a cloke in the euening. At S. Geneuiefues at 8. The Penitents at 9. The Carmelites at 10. The Carthusians at 11. S. Victors our ladys and others till 2. From 2. till 4. at the Benediction Bernardines and diuers others. From 4. to 5. 6. and 7. at all Collegiall and Parish churches: so that what

The pietie of Paris. 23 the Royall Prophete foretold is perfectly accomplished: from the rysing of the sun to the setting of the same, Gods holy name is prayse worthy, praysed, and magnified.

to

ire

ige

11:-

ns

ht

the

ein

iet-

9.

The

tors

1 20

ne-

di-

0 %

what

Thus is pietie practifed all the worke dayes of the weeke all the yeare longe, The vie to which on holy breadwill dayes is added a fernot be mon, and vpon fun be any dayes, holy breade new in-

were so, yet more credit ought to be gruen to it, then to all the Protestants oppositions) but as ancient, at least, as Gr. Naz. Otation-19, who saith, he was wone to blisse breade and signe it with the signe of the crosse. S. Aug. de peccatorum mer. & remissione c. 26. and in manys other places, Paulinus Notanus ep. 1 ad seuerum saying, that he changed breade in culogiam mto a blessed thinge.

(which might passe for the

24 The pietie of Paris.

facrament in England, for any thinge I knowe, especially if received with faith) holy water, the procession and prone (that is a familiar explication vpon the Gospell

b. Holy water Was in vsein the tyme of the Apostles, or at least soone after, since Pope Alexander, the fifth after S. Peter commands it in his first canonicall epistle. As also Pope Damasus libro Pontif c.7. Epiphanius l.c. Tom. 2. contra pre

le ac

Me?

Ebionitas &c.

c. The vse of processions is as ancient, at least, as Tertulian in the seconde Age saying: let the Procession be modest. Prastrip. contra. Hære. c. 43, and l. 2, ad vxoxem. S. Amb. coplaines that sewe came to the Procession S. Aug. l. 22, de Ciu. Dei c. d. Tells how the people came runing to bim, (to testisse the newes of a miracle done at S. Stephens shrine in the same church) where ie satt being readie to goe in procession, as is practised all through the Cath. church till this tyme, euery suddy in the midst, or beginning of masse of the day) for the fore noone, togeither with a formall

The pietie of Paris. 25 mall fermon and catechifme for the afternoone. This is the ordinarie practife all Paris ouer. But the Pastours zeale for the instruction, and inflamation of the peoples hartes stayes not here, but further, by himselfe or his order, there are most eloquent fermons made all the dayes of Aduent and lent, faue faterday, by the fame preachers, who are followed with a wonderous concurse of Auditours, and a noe lesfe admirably quiet attention of so great a multitude, without the least hemming or spitting, saue onely when the preacher makes his pawses to giue way to necessitie in that kind. Can then our ad-

oly nd

X

ell

nce

ter

pi-

ntra

ient,

Age

ral-

y XO = Came

Dei

ng to fame

, goe

every made

formall

B

26 The pietie of Paris. uersaries without affected malice pretend that the papists are nousled vp in ignorance, which with the proude Manicheans they impudently object against them. · But as the dignitie of preists and highth of pastorall functions is as venerable, as otherwise dreadfull, and brings with it according to Tertulians profound exprefsion intolerabilis magnitudo, a waight insupportable to humane shoulders; and as their practices are full of religion and pietie, fo is their care as great, as farre as humanly can be deuised, to make a hopefull prouision of younge priestes to assiste them in their life tyme, and to suc-

0

81

be.

th

R

P

his

de.

Pr de

The pierie of Paris. 27 ceede in their places after their deathes. To this effect, a poore secular priest, but a great servant of God, (whofe admirable workes of charitie haue made him famous all the world ouer, as here belowe we shall fee) fuggested an effectuall meanes to the most illustrious and most Reuerend Archebishope of Paris, then being (to witt aboue 30. yeares agoe) who highly approued and confirmed it; and ordered it to be observed by all that should pretend for holy orders at his hands: and it is still continued by like approbation, by his commande, who doth now illustrate the faid fea.

2-

0=

11=

As

11-

as nd

to ref-

hu-

heir

ion

care

inly

e a

ingt

in (uc

Bij

The meanes suggested by that Holy priest to perfect

ARTICLE III.

HAT all that should take holy orders, should be obliged to make a spirituall retreate at S. Lazares, where he gouerned, for the space of 10. days: that none should rashly intrude themfelues into so dreadfull a ministerie, nor take the honour to himseife, vnlesse called as Aaron. And wheras this is a thinge, as worthy the approbation as imitation of all Bishoppes, I have The pietie of Paris. 29 thought it of vse, and edification, to putt downe the exercises in that holy retreate in particular.

e

1

o-Te

hy

100

Ten dayes then before the collation of holy orders, all the ordinandi repaire to S. Lazars, sometymes 50. or 60. fometymes to the number of one hundred, where they find bedd, and borde, and all thinges readie by Gods prouidence, without their care or coste, and they are all most humanely and charitably receiued, not so much into the house, as into the bosomes of the pious inhabitants.

Two different intertaynements are made to them

B iii

euery day. The one in the morneing, vpon the cheife heades of morall divinities the other towards the euening, of the vertues, and qualities proper to their intended function.

Sac

Vitt

dul

the

the

deg

tey

an

of

de

There are ten made in all of either kind.

The first day they speake of the censures of the Church in generall.

The feconde, of the faid Censures in particular, as of excommunication, suspenfion, interdicts, and irregularitie.

The 3. day of the Sacrament of Pennance. As of its institution, forme, effects, and of the conditions necessarie in the Confessiour.

The pierie of Paris. 31
The 4. Dispositions to the Sacrament of Pennance; to witt Contrition, Confession, and Satisfaction, with Indulgences.

fe

ie:

10=

in=

all

ake

rch

aid

s of

en-

gu-

cram

its

ects,

ecel-

The 5. Of divine and humane Lawes: and of finne in generall, with the division therof; the circumstances, the kinds, causes, effectes, degrees, and remedies.

The 6. Of the three first commandements, which conteyne mans dutie to God: and of three Theologicall Vertues, with the vertus of Religion, and its acts.

The 7. Is an explication of the other 7. Commandements which concerne our neighbour.

In the 8. Of the Sacra-B iiii ments in generall, and of Confirmation and the Euchariste, in qualitie of a Sa-

The 9. Of the Eucharist as it is a facrifice, and of Extreme-Vnction, and Mariage.

The 10. Is the explication of the Creede. With what is necessarie to be knowne by enery priest, and what they may teach the people thervpon with prosit.

The afternoones incertagnement.

ARTICLE IV.

HE first day is of mentall prayer. First the motiues to it for cler-

The pietie of Paris. 33 giemen. 2. Wherin it confiftes: 3. The methode and meanes to performe it. And in this they are exercised every day for some tyme.

ia=

011

at

ne

at

ple

nt.

irst

The 2. Day the speach is of ones vocation, and of the state of a Church man. That this vocation should be had before one presents himfelse to Orders: wherin it consists, and which are the markes of it, with the meanes to know it, and to corresponde to it.

The third speakes of the spirit of a clergieman: and shewes how he is to enter into this spirit: wherin it consists: the markes of it, the means to acquire it, and to growe perfect in it.

The 4. Treates of Orders in general!: of their institution, necessitie, matter, forme, effects, and differences. With the dispositions necessarie to receive them.

part 7

Dear

prop

T

of t

for p

Ir

of t

Whe

life

Aith

tow

0631 mac

to c

The 5. Of the first Tonfure, with an explication of the doctrine of that ceremonie. The obligations contracted by it. The dispositions and qualities required.

The 6. a discours of the lesser orders in particular: their definition, the matter, forme, and functions, with the vertues required to complye with them worthily.

The 7. Of the office of Subdeacon, and the vertues proper to this order, and particularly of chastitie.

tu-

01 es.

ne.

011-

of

re-

011=

Jui-

the

The 8. Of the office of Deacon , and the vertues proper to it, particularly of charitie to our neighbour.

The 9. Of preisthood, and of the knowledge necessarie for priests to acquitt themselues of their dutie.

In the 10. Is a discourse of the life of a clergie man. Wherin it is made appeare that they who have receiued holy orders, ought to lar: leade a much more holy ter, life, then that of lay men, with many aduices to helpe om towards such a life.

All these thinges they repeace in their conferences made afterwards, the better to committ them to memorie.

They make euery day abouthalfe an houre of mentall prayer, and conferences vpon it afterwards, to instruct fuch as are lesse exercifed therin. How to vse considerations, to moue affections, and to make refolutions.

f

h

pi

f

They are daylie exercised in the functions of the orders which they are to take, and in the ceremonies of the holy Masse.

They are made to recite the Office all togeither, and to obserue the stopps, &c.

They are disposed to make their generall Confessions, at least from their last generall one; and the next day they communicate at high Masse.

They have 7. houres to repose in by night, and two houres of noly conversation every day, this is after diner and supper. In which tyme they reade the holy Scriptures, and Molina of the dignitic and fanctitic of preisthoode.

Vpon funday after they have taken Orders, they affifte at high Masse, and communicate, in thankes giuing for their holy ordination, and so returne to their owne homes.

day nen-

ices.

in-

ker-

vle

af-

fo-

ised

01=

ake,

fthe

ecite

and

cc.

Thus they are most substantially and piously prepared; which good dispositions are visibly observed to be followed with such blessed effects, that huge benedi38 The pietie of Paris.
Ctions of admirable reformations in the whole Clergie of France, is seene every where.

I remember I have frequently heard from the mouthe of that most Illustrious and venerable old Prelate Monfeigneur of Chalcedoine (in whose blessed companie, I had the honour and happinesse to be for aboue 20. yeares togeither) who all that tyme, and before, was ordinarily imployed by the Archbishope of Paris to give holy Orders, and the Sacrament of Confirmations I heard, I say, from his mouthe, that the primitive tymes seemed to him to be renewed againe in those ho-

The pietie of Paris. 39 ly young men; who, faid he (with much Emphasis his harte being dilated with ioy and iubilie) approched to me, as tho drunke with the newe wine of the Acts: so did the abundance of their hartes, breake out in fithes and fobbs, intercepting their words; and their joyfull teares forcibly burstforth, and watered my handes. This truth, which I often heard that Saintly Bishope powre out with fo much feruour and high approbation, better knowne to me, then to many others, I thought fitt to register downe, to the honour of God, and that holy institution.

d

ed

11

0= ho

e,

by

to

he 011;

115

9.31

be

10=

If this most happie Institution, spreed its fruites all ouer France, and euen extend its, flowrishing branches into forraine nations too, as here after we shall see, how iust occasion doth it not administer vs highly to extolle the pietie and charitie of the good tree whence they sprunge. We may well say of this holy Authour, what S. Henry fpelman faid in the begining of his Councells of one admired in former Ages: he was a starre of the first Magnitude, and euen indeede a prodigie of pietie. If I should vndertake to fpeake of the strength and puritie of his faith: the highth and confidence of his hope: and the enerburning flames

fre

fair

he

it

tue

10

The pietie of Paris. 41 of his charitie, I should lesfe want matter then tyme to deliuer it, and withall swarue from my designe, which is historically to offerre a finale scantling of a huge abundance; and not to fall into a panigerike which would find noe end. Noe, my ayme is not to prayle this faintly man, but God in him, fince in deede the greatest Sainte is neuer prayfed as he ought, but when we prayfe God in the Sainte from whom all Sanctitie. Nor is it my meaning to prayle his vertues at home, in what euer degree of speculation or practife he might possesse them, but their profusion abrode vpon his neighbours,

2,25

how

ad-

tol-

e of

hey

fay

phat

d in oun-

for-

re of

euen

etie.

e 10

and

ighth

ope: ames 42 The pietie of Paris. that credit may be still giuen to workes, not to words which are lyable to deceipt. All the prayle of vertue, can a pagan tell vs, consists in action; nor is vertue any orher thinge, as we are taught by a better Master, then the order of charitie. And where was charitie euer better ordered, then where humane respects had noe hand in the distribution, but it streamed indifferently out vpon all, faue onely, where it found difference of necessitie, and there it still most auer

he v

poor

but a

MOU

him.

mak

by,

com

100 long

Nature, or prouidence, had forted him out but a fmale share in the goods of fortune, in his abiect extraabounded-

The pietie of Paris 43 ction: for he was wonte frequently to tell the world, that he was but the sonne of a poore fwinheard or cow heard The accession of Benefices any added but litle to his wants, night fince he neuer possessed any then but a poore Cure, and that whe for a smale tyme. And as petter prouidence had begun with him, so he went on with her, and in making pouertie his portion Area by his free choyce; and the upon companie, and care of the poore, his center all his life ecessis longe; and himselfe, and all mol his, their stewards.

iuen

ords

eipt.

, can

is in

ence y but a ods of extra-

T

conce

of the begining and Be of V ginners of the Congregation of dim the Mission and Missioner whose which complyed with the ear of the of this stewardshippe.

ARTICLE V.

In the yeare of our Lord and 1624. March the first, being gun the happie establishmen of the companie of the Congregation of the priests of the Mission, in the Colledge of Bons enfans conferred vpo M. Vincent Paule, by the most illustrious Iohn Francis de Gondy Archbish ope of Paris, to that purpose. Twitt, his brother the General of the Galeeres, and his most assertions.

The pietie of Paris. ertuous lady, being well acuainted what great thinges od Be Ar Vincent had performed ation of their owne Lordhips, in thatkind, for the good the care f their poore vasfalls, and Gods glorie, they had longe onceiued a pious desire to oncurre iountly to be Foun-Lorders of the faid Mission, which h, be hey imparted to their broshmen her the Archbishope, to mae Con e vse of his power ouer Mr softh incents spirit (whom they edge new to be as flowe in vndervpo aking, as diligent and faithby deall in performing what he France vndertooke) to induce im to accept the charge. Vhichwas done accordingly, Genera nd he wholie acquieseed to Archbishops pleasure.

ris.

Here vpon was 40000. liures tournois, or 4000. pistolls putt downe by the most noble and pious founders in Mr Vincents hands, in readie money. Vpon the following conditions.

211

the

rely tho

mo

con at t

Out

pu

kin

of

at

sh

life

A

of

tha

6

First, that the end and whole imployement of these Missionaries should be, to tend to, and to procure the corporall and spirituall good of the poore people of the villages; and that too so wholy, that they were not to meddle to preach or administer facraments in any considerable townes, saue in case of extreame necessitie, but to goe from village to village to instruct and assiste those poore abandoned soules. Secondly that they were to renounce all church Benefices, dignities and offices, to applie themselues intirely and purely, with the leaue of the ordinaries, to the saueing of those poore people, by sermons, catechismes, generall confessions &c. And that too at their cost and charges, without admitting of any retribution or rewarde, in what kind soeuer.

The pictie of Paris. 47

ures

110-

1Mr

adie

wing

hole

iffio-

d to,

orall

f the

agesi

that le to facra

erable

of ex

0 200

toil

100 rt

ondi

Thirdly that the election of proper subjects should be at Mr Vincents pleasure, who should gouerne them all his life longe.

And that which is worthy of special observation, is, that these blessed Founders, so purely and disintressedly

48 The pierie of Paris. aymed at Gods glorie, and the good of the poore alone, that they made noe referues. of any fixed thinge relating to themselues in particular; either in point of honour or profit. In so much that they imposed noe obligation of masses or other prayers, either in their life tyme, or after their death, faue onely the right of Patronage accorded by the holy canons of the church, part of which also they renounced, as the denomination to offices &c.

Mr

MY 1

hr

one)

creal

01 1

may mou Here fonalaed neue, leffe Mr Vincents complying with the Foundation: and of the establichment of the Mission in divers places.

ne, ar;

r or hey

her

the

ided

the

also

e de

My

ARTICLE II.

ITH this vertuous foundation Mr Vincent began to complie, having one onely companion in the begining, which foone after increased to the number of 10. or 12. and ere this, as we may guesse with probabilitie, mounts even to thousands. Here vpon me thinkes a reasonable doubt might be moved, whether as there was never holy worke begun, with lesse of man, and more of

C

be 16

16: En

ce

D

the ha

it

th

God in it, so there were neuer any which God more owned, and bestowed a larger benediction of successe vpon, euen within the compasse of his life tyme who begun it. For in a short tyme he fawe his children as young plants of oliue trees, in great numbers, round about his table, and the oyle of heavenly graces streaming downe in great aboundance vpon that venerable ancient heade, it thence plentifully ran downe euen to the hemme of his garments. Hence it was that from that riche fourse whole colonies did spreedd themsel ues not onely all France ouer, but euen extended themselues to forraine Lands,

The pietie of Paris. 51
The first establishment stowing from this fountaine, was begun at Toul in the yeare 1635. by the consent and approbation of the Bishope of the place.

ne-

ore

rger

pon, le of n it.

fawe

ants

um-

able,

ienly

ne in

that

OWNE

of his

s that whole

emsel

The feconde at Richlieu 1638. founded by the most Eminent Cardinal of the place, with obligation to preach &c according to their pious institute, to the poore of the Diocese of Poitiers, as also to those of Lucon of which he had formerly bene Bishope.

The third was founded by the faid Cardinall at Lucon it felfe in the yeare 1645. with full power granted by the Bishope therof to preach, and teach &c. all ouer his Dio cese.

The fourth at Troye, in the yeare 1638, by the charitable affistance of the Bishope of

The

Rei

Val

164

the

the

M

Th

Di

the place.

The fifth in the Diocese of Geneua in the yeare 1640. where the Cammandour of Sillery founded them a seminaric where they still labour with much suite. Still with the approbation of the Bishope of the Diocese which I shall not herafter neede to mention.

The Sixth in the yeare 1641 at Rome, by the Duchesse of Aiguillon, who also founded seauen of the said Missionaries in her duchie of Aiguillon. The eight was founded againe by the said Duchesse at Marceilles: The

The pietie of Paris. 53 nighth in the Diocese of Caors in the yeare 1643. by the faintly Bishope therof. The tenth in the Diocese of Reimes by the Archbishope Vallancy 1644. The 11. at Montmirail in Brye by the Duke of Rets in the yeare 1644. The 12. at Zaintes by the Bishope and clergie the the same yeare. The 13. at Mans by the Bishope 16 45. The 14. in the Diocese of S. Malo at S. Meen in the yeare 1645. The 15. at Genne in Italie at the instance of Cardinall Durasso, Archbishope of the said place, in the yeare 1645. The 16. at Agen by the Bishope of the place 1650 The 17. at Crecy in the Diocese of Meaux in the

the

of

eof

40.

rof

mi-

nour

with shoch I

e to 641 resse

oun-

illio-

Ai-

0117

Du-

The

yeare 1641.

The 18.was founded at Vasouia in Polognia by the liberalitie of that most pious Queene, in the yeare 1651.

Bish

Bish

Wası

1

Ar

nun

of i

tho

ly 1

The 19. in the Diocefe of Montauban by the Bishope of the place. In the yeare 1652.

The 20. At Treguier in Britanie by the. Bishope and count of the place. In the yeare 1654.

The 21. at Adge in Languedoc by the Bishope and Count of the place in the

yeare 1654.

The 22. at Turin in Piedomont at the instance of Mr le Marquis of Pianezze who founded them. 1654.

The 23. at Amiens by the

The piotie of Paris. 55 Bishope of the place, with the perpetuall direction of his seminarie.

The 24.At Noyon by the Bishope of the place, with the direction of his seminarie; This was resoluted vpon in Mr Vincents life tyme, but was onely accomplished after his death.

be-

Ţ,

of

pe

are

and

the 211-

the

ied.

Mr

who

the

He fent also Missionaries into Africke to Tunis and Argers to ayde, instructe, and comfort the poore Christian slaues, who were there to the number of twentie or thirtie thousand. To Madagascar also beyond the lyne, a voyage of sixe monthes sayle, to endeuour the conuersion of those poore insideles, Finally to the Hebrides in the

So

be

he

no

an

furdest partes of scotland, and into Ireland. Ostrange benediction vpon the pious labours of one poore preist! of him certainly may that of Ecclesiasticus be verified: bleffed is the man who is without spott, and that hath not gone after gold, nor hoped in the heapes of money. Who is this, and we will payfe him, for he hath done meruelous thinges in his life. Meruelons thinges indeede, and fuch as might hardly gayne credit, were not all Paris a witnesse therof, where it was generally knowne that he was a person of so litle felfe interest that many had shewne themselues more readie to offerre great aduanta-

The pietie of Paris. 57 ges, then he to admitt of them. So that of him might truly be faid, that hauing nothing he possessed all: to witt the noblest harts of Paris adheared to his pious counsells, and their purses lay open to his charitable suggestions.

and

be-

12-ift!

t of

ed:

o is ath honey.

lone

life. de,

rdly

whe-

wne

litle

had

rea-

nta-

TEMCE it is that in the extreame wants and ca lamities of Loraine, though otherwise an enemye countrie, he procured to be sent thither at diverse tymes, and caused it to be distributed amongst the most needie, by

Cv

Of the huge assistance, and charities which Mr Vincent procured to be sent to Loraine.

for

offe

low

the

pre

pro

it.

tel

a fu

his Missionaries, to the summe of fixteene hundred thoufand frankes (that is 1600. thousand pistolls) to which the faid Missionaries added noe lesse large proportion of their follicitudes and paines, who spent their whole tyme for many yeares togeither in visiting the poore and the ficke, and in fournishing many thousands of them with all things necessarie for body and foule. All these thinges might haue bene more amply and authentically testified by the acknowledgements of the persons releeued by those charities; had not humble Vincents care to staue off vanitie vpon all occasions, prevented the same;

ma

0114

00.

ich

ı of

es;

me

r in

the

na-

with

ody

ges

am-

efti-

dge-

lee-

had

reto

10Ca

me;

for wheras one of his, imployed in the distribution, offered to fend publicke attestation of his, and his fellowes fidelitie therin, he receiued answer from his modest father that he would not haue him to demande any such testimonies, it being sufficient that God knew their workes, and that the poore were assisted, without producing any such attestations, these were his words. Yet his prouidence who will have honour to follow those that flye it, and will exalt him who humbles himselfe, fayled not to drawe divers authenticall testimonies from the gratefull hartes of the oblidged perfons addressed to him, nor shall they lye in obscuritie but shall be placed in the light, to Gods honour in him, and an admirable example to others, accordinge to that Euangelicall maxime: so let your light shine before men, that they see your good workes, and glorise your father who is in heaven.

ho

per

Sec

21 po

nec

dli

re

wh

6

80 fi

I. Iohn Midot Doctour of diuinitie, Archdeacon, canon, and Vicare Generall of Tou the sea being vacant, doe certifie and atteste, that the preists of the congregation of the Mission, who reside in this towne, continue any tyme these two yeares, to comfort, to cloth, to seede, and give physicke to the poore, with much edification and charitie. First of all, they have taken into their owne

The pietie of Parit 61 house a matter of sixtie sicke persons; and haue lodged about 20. more in the suburbs. Secondly they give almes to a number of other bashfull poore reduced to extreame necessitie, who betake themselues hither for refuge. Thirdlie they receive a many poore naked and lame foldiers which returne from thekings armie into their owne house, and cure. In which charitable actions, and other their pious comportments, all good people are wonderfully edified. In witnesse wherof I have figned and sealed these presents. Toul Decemb, 1639.

im,

eto

hat

o let

that

glo-

wer.

ir of

ca-

llof

ent,

that

ay-

reli-

nue

ires,

ede,

tion they

The copie of another letter.

huge

of ou hope

our

his v

the then

effec

vith

extr

me

cie.

VS V

ries

the

am

pari

the

YOU

R. fince a great many yeares that this poore towne hath bene afflicted with plague, warre, and famine; which hath reduced it to this excesse of miserie wherin now it is, in lieu of consolations, we have onely mett with rigourous dealings from our creditours, crueltie from the soldiers, who forceably robbed vs of the smale quantitie of bread which we had : fo that it feemed that the heavens had nothing but rigours for vs. when behold one of your children in Iesus Christ, came loaden with almes, which

The pietie of Paris 63 hugely tempered the excesse of our miserie; and raysed our hopes ingods mercy. Sr.fince any our offences have provoked oote his wroth, we humbly kiffe ded the hand which doth punish h them, as we also receive the edit effects of his divine mercy, ferie with the resentements of an of extraordinarie acknowledgenely ment. We bleffe the instruments of his infinite clemenruel cie, as well these who relieue who vs with these seasonable chathe ries, as those who procure read them and distribute them at it amongst vs; and you in shad particular, deare Sr. whom we vs, looke vpon, after God, as you the principall authour of so singular a blessing. To tell you how well it is applyed er.

came

high

to this poore place, where the cheife persons are reduced to nothing, the Missonaries you have sent, will relate it with lesse interest then our selves. They have bene eye witnesses of desolation, and you will find in the sight of God the eternal obligations we owe you, for haveing succoured vs in this our miferable condition.

bas

fic

tic

ho

VI

10 aci

ab

ch:

hit

di

13

From the officiers and councell of Luneuille 1642.

A Copie of another letter.

Seblidged vs, in the affiflance you have afforded to our poore begges, to our

The pietie of Paris. bashfull indigent, and to our ficke perfons; and more particularly to our religious houses, that we should proue vngratfull if we deferred any longer to testifie our sensible acknowledgements, we being able to assure you, that the charities which you have sent hither, could neuer be better distributed and imployed then vpon our poore people, who are verie many in number, and specially vpon the religious women, who are destitute of all humane assistance; some of them not inioying any part of their smale reuenues euer since thewarrs; and others not receiving any thinge from the richer forte of the towne, who formely ere du-

na-

late

out

eye and

of

ions

eing

mi-

¢I.

arly

d to

OH

66 The pietie of Paris!

gaue them almes, they, being now, deprined of their owne meanes. Whence we find our felues oblidged humbly to beseech you, deare Sr.as by the presents we doe, to continue the fame charitable assistances, as well to the poore, as to the Monasteries of this place, which hitherto you haue done. It is a subject of great merite, for those that doe these good workes, and for you who have the conduct therof, which you performe with fo much prudence and dexteritie, to the gayning a great crowne in heauen.

From the Magistrates of Mets Octob. 1664.

moj

Informations of the calamitous state of Lorraine sent to Mr Vincent by some of his Missionaries.

ing me Jur

to

by

011-

the

ies

rto

iect

you

ARTICLE VIII.

DEING arrived at S.Mi-Chel I find fo great a note number of poore people, that ces, ! am notable to give to all; the here are aboue 3. hundred n verie great necessitie, and n- 300. more reduced to ex the reamitie. Sr.I tell you noe in more then a bare truth; there ire aboue 100. of them, who appeare onely squelletes coaered with skinne, and are fo 68 The pietie of Paris.

gastlie, that vnlesse God did strengthen me, I should even in dreade to looke vpon them. Their skinns are like taunie marble, and are so dried vp, w that their teeth seeme to be drye and discouered &c. At our last distribution of breade there were 1052. poore people, besides the sicke who are in greate numbers, which we affishe with foode, and conuenient medicines &c. O Sr. what a number of soules in goe to heauen through pouertie! since I came first into Loraine, I haue affisted aboue a thousand poore people at the their death, who shewed all of them, that they were perfectlywell disposed to dye&c.

The pietie of Paris. 69 In fin to contract much into a litle (for should we infilte vpon particulars we should neuer make an end) we may fay with truth (to be Gods honour and the vn-At speakable pietie of Paris, especially of the Dames of the one charitie) that the profuse litho beralities procured by this ich faintly priest, were extended and by his wife care in the distributing therof, to the releeuing of 25. townes, to say nothinge of many bourges and villages. O bleffed and admi-rable example of Parifian charitie, neuer happly to be parelled by any other place in Christendome? O incom-parable power of the riche ponertie of one poore priest, who was able piously to picke the purses of thousands of the picke pourse, and their plentifull possessions and posteritie be made blessed for euer and euer.

Of assistance given in Paris. to many of the nobilitie of Lorraine

ARTICLE IX.

here was yet noe end have of the fame countrie having observed how sweetly and comfortably the streamer of Paris pietie had flowed while bashfulnesse permitted

The pietie of Paris. 71 icke them to taste noe parte in of the same, however their miserie in verie deede was so much more sensible, by how eb much they had bene lesse acquainted with want, and found it lesse sutable to their condition, the sense of their miserie taught them to practife a lesson which they had neuer learnt, fo that they tooke courage to run vp to the fountaines heade, and cast themselues into the open bosome of that comon father of the poore Mr Vincent, who tooke their miserie to harte, by commiseration, and his charitie wanted not an inuention to relieue them; not now by the ladys of the charitie whom he still reserved for a

r.

aris.

rrains

bu

end

nobil

trie

ame

OVE

72 The pietie of Paris.

greater imployement, but by certaine men of knowne pietie, and charitie, who had mettings at S. Lazars euerie month to taxe themselues to a certaine summe which might reach to the subsistance of that poore nobilitie, which was caried to their respective chambers by perfons of honour, euery month for 7. or 8. yeares space; till their countrie at length began to be in a better condition, at which tyme too Mr Vincent fayled not to furnish them with moneys to returne home, and to afford them a liuelihoode for some tyme after.

of it

it by piehad

ierie

elues

hich

fan-

itie, their

per-

of the releife procured by the same meanes for Picardie and Champine. Line in the sile of the

ARTICLEX

RVE charitie neuer meetes with a non plus onth Itra: by how much more she estill ites, by so much more she be icreases: for the purchace andi f it, should a man giue all oo Mis substance, he would fur steeme it as nothinge. One vs to ould have beneapt to have ford onceived, that this poore fome riest had performed his part the full, and that the large istributions made to Loraie, might well nigh haue

74 The pietie of Paris. drayned the purses of Paris: but charitie which hopeth all of things, is neuer idle, neuer Day wearie, neuer with out coura-win ge, neuer without inuention fe. where so ever she meetes had with equall necessitie, she about finds in her harte equallyho compassion, which dilates it and to an answerable liberalitie. tred . What had Mr Vincent ther spot to doe but to feafon the tender hartes of the good ladyes led of the charitie, and other ver- in tuous persons with the crying aga calamities and miseries of The their neerer neighbours of led Picardie and Champine? And bree how could he doe this withdog more credit, and effect, ther Ou by the fresh informations of pitty his pious Missionaries who out

The pietie of Paris. Paris: were labouring in the middst ethall of desolations? His pious neuer Dames he assembles once or coura twice a weeke to this purpoention fe. Reades to them what he meete had received. There are , she aboundance (writes one) equal who are afflicted with fluxes ates and feeuers; others are couered with scabbs, and purplespotts, tumours and impostumes. Many there are swelled, some in their head, some in their bellie, and some againe all their bodie ouer. These infirmities were caufed by eating wild rootes and bread of branne which a dogge would hardly eate. Our eares are filled with pittifull lamentations, and outcryes for breade, and how

ralitie

at the

he ten

ladye

er ver

cryin ries (

ours

ne? An

is Wi

ect, the

es wh

The pietie of Paris. foeuer sicke they are, they re dragge themselves through less rayne and mire two or three cate legues off to haue a few pottage. Many dye without confession and the other facra-bran ments, and euen buriall it felfe, the poore dead body wee, being left in their homly for cottages til they are eaten vp with wildebeafts. Another of writes thus, we are newly returned from visiting 35. villages in the deanerie of Guise, where we found neere vpon 500. people so excessiuely miserable, that they me feaze vpon deade dogges and horses, which are the wolues leauings. And in the verie 100 towne of Guise, there are aboue 500. ficke persons, who

prof

illo

The pietie of Paris. 77 they are lodged in caues and three eaten noe bread in 6. or 7. poor layes, not so much as that con which they make of barley facta pranne, which is kept for iall it hose which are most at their body case. Their meate is lezards, nomly frogges and wild herbes. This eater litle, of the longe relations, nother of miseries yet more horriner de, both for soule and bodie, g 35 fluing from the mouth of that pious priest, who gaue Ineet life and energie to all that he refently. the reached the compassionate esant bowells of those charicable volue Ladys, who presently underver tooke the releife of those two provinces, and once againe illustrated the pietie and cha-

D iii

78 The pietie of Paris.

rith

men

which

Whi

was

ritie of Paris. All things were wantinge to those poore abandonned persons in the ruinated countrie. And a prouision of all thinges was also presently made at Paris necessarie for body and soule. And that too in fuch abundance; that the chambers and cabinets of most illustrious Duchesses and marquesses and other great Ladys, might seeme to be turned into the Magazins of Marchants, or Apothecaries shopps; such a number of sutes of apparell, shirts, smockes, shoes, stockins, couerlets, sheetes, and other linen necessarie for the sicke, as also drogues for physicke confeictures &c. Togeither

The pietie of Paris. 79 were with chalices and other ornaments for the church &c. the which togeither with corne to sowe the neglected feilds which lay fallow, and what was fent in drye money, amounted in all to fine hundred thousand frankes, making halfe a french million, to the eternall prayse of the charitie of Paris be it remembred for euer.

nd a

was

Paris

fou-

fuch

nbers

illu-

mart Latur-

as of caries

of fu-

smoc. ouer.

linen

e, as

viicke either The establishement of an Hospia tall in S. Lazars suburbs for the children found exposed in the streetes.

ARTICLE

W HILE Mr Vincents and the pious Parisian ladys D iiii

80 The pietie of Paris.

man

esper

he is ce i

fixe

wa:

me

tu!

po

00

charities, had wrought and were still working, fuch wonders amongst the poore difstressed people abroade, his pious care did not, the while, ouerlooke Paris, and was wanting at home. For though he well knew that our dutie of louing our neighbour ought to be extended all the world ouer, fince as S. Augustine saith, omnis homo homini proximus, that enery man is neighbour to each other: yet he knew also that there is an order in charitie, wherby we are bound to imploye the cheife part of our care vpon our neerest relations, whether for bloude, place, or dependance: whence that of S. Paule: if any

The pietie of Paris t and man have not care of his owne, TWOIL especially of his domesticalls &c. edif. he is worse then an infidele. Hene, his ce it was that his eyes were fixed, and his wounded harte was bleeding vpon the lamentable condition of poore duite abandonned new borne infants, whose bodies and soules are exposed to vtter perdition, either by the vnnaturall crueltie of naughtie women, or by the extreame pouertie of necessitous parents, who couertly leaue them in the streetes at all aduentures. Of fuch kinde of deserted innocents it is observed in this vaste world of Paris, that scarce a yeare passes without three or foure hundred in the towne and while,

hbour

ed all

as S.

s homo

enery

each

o that aritie,

to im-

of our

frela-

loude,

whenif any 82 The pietie of Paris:

viet

IOW

ma

ber

ab

h

to

fuburbs. Such agrowing nourferie euery one will judge cannot be maintayned with a litte. And indeede the annuall maintenance therof mounts to noe lesse then 4000. pistolls. A large proportion truly, which is still growing vp to more and more, sed charitas nunquam excidit charitie too growes still and, knowes noe bounds, and she is fournished with a skilfull Aduocate to pleade her pious cause, whose charicable harte seemed to be continually breading with S. Paule, his Patrone, and to say with Rachel, giue me (these) children ot erwise I shall dye. And so addressing him felfe to the good Ladyes,

The pietie of Paris. vseth this plea with a voyce lowder then ordinarie, animated with his wonted zeale. Ladys, saith he, compassion and charitie haue moued you to adopte these poore litle creatures to be your children, you haue hitherto bene their mothers accordinge to grace, euer fince their mothers, according tonature, abandoned them. Leaue for a while to be their mothers, to become their judges. Their life and death are in your hands. I am readie to take your votes, it is tyme to prouounce their sentence; and to know whether you will not any longer take pittie of them. If you continue your charitable care towardsthem, iudge

with

e the

herof

then

prostill

lmo-

excidit

dshe

cilfull

arita-

onti-

Pau-

shall

him lyes, 84 The pietie of Paris.

who

W

the.

the

int

tea

ue !

der

fitt

ma

per

per

mot

Tho

they liue: if not, but that you will abandonne them, they infallibly perish and dye, as your owne experience putts you out of doubt. Noe sooner was this said, but the tender harted ladys found themselues so strucke with the energie of his speach, that they all vnanimously resolued, that cost what it would, they would not quitt this charitable interprise. Nor did they; for those poore soules are till this day nourished and brought vp under the care and assistance of ten or 12. good fisters of the charitie, with the helpe of a number of nouses who live in the faid Hospitall, togeither with a many more in the countrie

The pietie of Paris. 85

they

e, as putts

oner

ender

nsel-

ener-

they

ued,

they arita-

are and

care

f 12.

ritie,

mber

the

rrith

ntrie

who receive a monthly pay. When they are once wayned, they are deliuered backe to the listers of the charitie, who in teachinge them to speake, teach them also to pray, to know God, to loue and ferue him. As they grow vp in yeares, they are taught fome litle workes to keepe them out of idlenesse, till prouidence forte them with some fitt occasion for their future beeing. Of these poore soules may be truly faid, they had perished, if they had not fo perished, fince they fell out the viworthy hands of stepmothers, into mothers tender hands, nay euen into his who faith: hardy is it credible, that a mother should forgett the fruite of her wombe, yet should she doe it, I will not forgett you faith our heauenly forter father.

fai

it,

th,

01

Of the establis' ement of the Dames and sisters of the charitie in Paris and els where.

ARTICLE XII.

he whole lawe and Prophetes faith S. August. after his master S. Paule, are nothinge els but loue, whence he seares not to say, ama confact quod vis. Nor doth any endeuours of man so infally-bly euince our loue to God, as the loue we shew to our neighbour: whence the same

The pietie of Paris same S. August saith: beleeue it, you neuer walke in a more fecure patherowards thelone of God, then by the charitie of man to man. This certainly he had redd in S. Ihon, that louing Apostle, saying: if any man shall fay, that he loues God, and yet hateth his brother, he is a lier, for he that loueth not his brother whom he feeth, how can he loue God whom he feeth not! And if our loue to our neighbour in generall be a certaine conuictió of our loue to God, how much more absolutly doth it appeare, in applying our charitie to those neighbours, who have nothing hamanly speaking, to gaine, our affection or assistance to her doe

ner.

dames tie in

d Pro-

e, are thence ma O

th any

God, to our 88 The pietie of Paris.

we.

WOI

the

to

to

Will

fay

the

Wa a

V

to them, tho they are other wife more particularly commended to vs by our deare Lord and master then all others. He hath left them to be his receivers of our charitable contributions to himselfe in their persons, what you gine to those least ones of nyne you give to me. Nay more he hath left himselfe in them, to be fedd, to be clade, to be lodged, to be visited by vs. We have noe lesse then his divine word for it: I was hungerie, and you gaue me to drinke: I was a stranger and you received me; naked, and you couered me; sicke and you visited me &c. How could he euer, cryes our S. Cyprian (and

The pietie of Paris. we with him) haue more forcibly prouoked vs to the workes of instice and mercy; then in declaring that is given to himselfe, which is given to the poore and needie? To thend that they, in the church who are not moued with refpect to their brother, may at least be moued in contemplation of Christ: and that they who doe not confider their fellow servant in his calamitie and want, may not fayle to reflect, that their Lord and master is represented in that verie person whom they despise. This reflection was deeply ingrauen in Mr Vincents harte, as it appeared in all his actions, yet more particularly (were it

here

omeare

all

m to cha-

him• nhat

ones

Nay

fe in

o be

o be

noe

rd for you

was 2

eined

iered

issted

euer,

and

90 The pietie of Paris possible) in this which we are about to relate. There appeared nothing of splendour or magnificence in this businesse, but contrarily an absolute contempt of it, and an effectuall meanes to make magnificence, and wordly greatnesse, stoope to the greatest miserie that haply euer heauen beheld; and therby to leave to the world the most admirable, and amiable exãple of Christian humilitie, that in the length of tyme it had euer mette with: an example, I fay, most agreable to God, and the Angells: to see Princesses and Duchesses, and other ladyes of the prime nobilitie of Paris, to the number of two hun-

The pietie of Paris. Ired and aboue, deuestethemfelues of the riche robes ador' ned with gold and diamants sutable to their Illustrious conditions, and to present and themselues in the Hospitalls nake in the modest attire of simple gentlewomen, with aprons before them, to serue and comfort the most despicable vio creatures aliue, as comon beggers, portours, and wounexaded foldiers, most nastie and gastly to behold. And this they make their businesse, and goe seriously about it, as a thinge (you would fay) belonging to them, of dutie, ge:ls: Du without discouering the least es of nicenesse or disdaingfulnesse Paris at all. Of this I have often bene an eyewitnesse any tyme len-

tie,

me it

: an

āley.

these 22. yeares and vp wards, and all Paris will testifie it till this day.

Nor doe they goe for fashions sake, and by way of diuertisment, but as their hartes are full of compassion vpon the beholding of fuch fade obiects, fo are their mouthes full of consolation and instruction, and their hands noe lesse replenished with charitable presets, agreeable to the infirmities of thofe, otherwise, contemptible creatures (if they did not eye poore Christe in them) as confeitures, bisquit, gelee cheries, rosted paires and aples with fugar, and the like; which the pouertie of the Hospitalls could not ordinaThe pietie of Paris. 93 rily afford to so vaste numbers. Wheras those good Ladys made plentifull prouision theros, in euery kinde, in a chamber neere adioyninge, which they hyred to that purpose; and euerie day by turnes, soure of them, performed that pious ministerie of going from bedd to bedd to make the distributio, with an humble meeknesse, well sured to so Christian a worke.

e it

fas-

of

heir

Tion

uch

heir

tion

heir

hed

ree-

hom

not em)

elee

like;

the

By these familiar and pleasing corporall assistances, the good ladyes gayned the harts of those poore people, and in consequence, their soules: for it was observed that in the space of one yeare, they induced 700. and sixtie of those infirme and maymed perfons (being some of them Lutherans, some Caluinists, and others Turkes taken at sea) to abiure their heresie, and imbrace the Catholice faith, to say nothing of mulwere moued by their vertuous example, and wholfome aduife, to make generall confessions, and to resolue of a more Christian life then formerly they had ledd.

multitudes of others who

Nor did this superlative example of Christianitie, keepe within the compasse of what these noble ladyes performed in their owne persons, but as the nature of Good is to be communicative, it spred it selfenot onely

The pietie of Paris 95 all ouer Paris, but euen extended to many remote villages, and Diocefes, to the extreame folace, and reliefe of poore honest families, who were as litle accustomed to begge their bread, as otherwise litle able to gayne it by their daylie labours.

per-

them

n at refie,

oli e mul-

who

ver. lsome

n for lating

itie

mpass

ladye

e per

ure

OTE

The institution of the Charitie in the most of, or even all, the Parishes of Paris.

The bleffed example of thefe great Ladyes ferued as the primum mobile vnder God to incite other Ladyes of an inferiour ranke togeither with many honest and vertuous bourgesses of the best forte, to emulate the

36 The pietie of Paris in so bleffed a practife, and it had indeede so powerfull an influence vpon them, that the most, or even all the Parishes of Paris, haue meetings, at least euerie monthe (being all affociated to geither in a holy confraternitie) to difcouer and conferre vpon the necessities of their respectine Parishes, at the Curates house, and accordingly by collections among themselues to prouide rel ese for them. The distribution of their charitable collections was first performed by the good ladys owne hands, who tooke the paines to goe vifite the poore and ficke of the Parishe, and take a more particular affurance of each

ones

ym

expe

pari

lus!

isfa

ior

03

Vir

The pietie of Parie. 97 dit mes necessitie; but in a smale lan yme they were taught by the xperience, that some other shes ourse was to be taken to , at arie on so pious a worke effeeing tually: for they found that in a lartly the care of their famidif. le could scarce dispence with heir absence, partly their usbands had noe great saura. isfaction in their conuersaon with such infirme and astie poore people; but espefor ially because they sawe that n of reir smale strength and skill, that kind, came not home the necessities of the sicke. the who Vherfor they adulfed of ome better way. And Mr e viincent their adjutor in opporinitatibus was consulted; and e who never was at a losse

he of more

each ones

to inuent meanes to promote the charitie, found out, and fer and led a constant and effectually way to continue the worke, and it was this.

The institution of the sisters of the Charitie.

ARTICLE XIV.

me wife to Monf. Ich Gras Secretarie to Queene for Margarite, now widdowe Whose maydenname was Ma rilac of the familie of the most vertuous and famous Chancelour of that name. Who a she was of an extraction which promised much, so she was in brodd in a schoole which taught more; to witt, in that

The pietie of Paris. 99 mote of the most famous, eloquent let and pious Camus Bishope of and Bellay, who was knowne to naue bene a great louer, and practiser of pouertie, and _ night easily theach her what imselfe practised, he being her spirituall directour, till vincents hands, where she nety was like to loofe nothinge of her propension to ducen erue the poore. This verowe wous lady, was the person ash pitched vpon by her present emo Directour as the prime instru-Cha nent for the defigned fet-Who lement. And certainly diwhit line prouidence was as much he n this choyce, as her vnderwhile takings were bleffed with adint nirable fuccesse. For she

E i

100 The pietie of Paris beinge wholy addicted to the feruice of the ficke, he tray ned her vp in that way, to fit had her for some greater working for the future and made her and make he first essayes in the villages of diuerfe Dioceses where there were otherwist noe hospitalls to succour the poore and ficke : as in that of Beauuais, Paris, Sanlys, Soif fon, Meaux, Chaalons, and Charters. In all which with incredible paines, being one lie accompained with fome other gentlewomen, and mayde, she settled confrater he nivies which last till this day But while he and she had not other designe but this lowling way in the villages, God had a greater designes vpon them is The pietie of Paris. 101 will bring it into the great tray wne of Paris, where she is to fit ade the mother of a comwork inie of courfe countrie de le aydes, which he inuented in the r certaine aydes to the verceses ous Dames of Paris, to the fect intimated as aboue. urth They are called maydes or hat ters of the charitie, and Soil ere instituted by Mr Vinand nt to serue the poore, eshis cially those that are sicke, gone he had alreadie instituted som issions of men to preach to and e poore. Mrs le Gras was frate e woman who was putt to sda struct them in vertue, and adner breade them vp, and to shion them to the end for dhe nich they are gathered tothe either, to witt, to assiste the

E ii

102 The pietie of Paris.

Dames of Paris to ferue the ficke in their Parishes, in the Hospitalls, or where elsthey the may be called. As they are brought vp by that good mother in humilitie, patience, fra and painfull labours, agreable to their end, fo are they futed to it in their attire, which is a plaine course gray coate, with out welt or gard, made close to their body, with a close plaine cheife to their heade and their imployment is to carie the potage pot betwixt two of them, vpon a staffe all vp and downe the parishe (which they keepe as bright to as the hollander doth his anderns) and to distribute broth and meate, with other necef-

B

16

an

The piotie of Paris. 103. ethe saries to the needie, accorin the dinge to the exigencie of sthey their ferrerall wants. This pott y are is prepared by turns in the day burgishesse house of the confraternitie, who are lyable to afford fire and feafoning, the futed rest being supplyed by the chis mutuall collections of the Parishe. Mr Vincents prudence and pietie regulated all these proceedings by cohead stitutions which he gaue to the congregation or companie of the said mayds, of the charitie, seruants of the poore affe al which by his credit, he gott parish to be approued by the Archbishope of Paris, in the yeare 1642. and to be authorised and confirmed by the kinges letters patents verified in the E iiij Parliament.

bright

his all

ebroil

necel

io 4 The pietie of Paris.

Of an Hospitall of old men and women founded in S. Lazars Suburbs by Mr Vincent.

wheri to G

poor

wher.

draw

to he halfe

goe

occa

pres

of it

gelli

OFF

Cent

app

way don

not

sho

ARTICLE XV,

ftill more instiffed, and him that is holy be more and more sanctified, saith the word of truth. In charities commerce there is noe staying at a stand; if she cease to acte, she ceaseth to bee. She perfectly well resembles fire which neuer leaues off burning, as longe as it can meete with matter to worke vpon. Thus it fared with this holy hart wherin charitie raigned:

The pietie of Paris. 105 he let noe occasion passe. wherin he might render glorie to God, and service to his poore neighbour. And as where charitie is knowen per fectly to raigne, she eafily drawes the hartes of all men to her seruice, so in this behalfe, he was not obliged to goe abroade to feeke the occasion, but it was freely the presented to him, without his care, or even the least thought of it. To witt, a good Burgesse of Paris came of his owne accorde, to Mr Vincents chamber, who, as it appeares, had learnt the true way of trading for the kingdome of heaven (for he was not willing that his left hand should knowe what his right

and

seto

She

s fire

bur-

reete

vp01

Ev

106 The pietie of Paris hand did, least vanitie should robbe him of some purt of his purchace) his money he was most willing to giue him, or even to steale it vpon him; but he was not willing to lend his name to o ne the gifte, but it was freely giuen, and vpon noe other condition or obligation then this, that his name should neuer (be forgotten, would vanitie haue indented) be knowen, as humilitie would have it: and in deede it neuer was knowne to this daye for he had mette with a stewards who was noe lesse religiously carefull in that behalfe then himselfe: so that one may truly fay ama nefciri co pro nililo reputari, might haue bene both their mottos

and

the tabl

pur

who

mo

mu

leff

left

to

the

gh

con

plo

The pietie of Paris. 07 and that fo truly, that could the executour of that charitable worke, have bene as easily concealed, as the giver therof; neither of their names, I dare well say, had ever bene knowen. Be the givers of such pure gifts blessed for ever, whose actions are so much more prayse-worthy, by how much the Donours ayme at lesse prayse.

uld

t of

he

im,

im;

end

fte,

and

1,01

his

forauc

hu-

din

wne

ette

noe

l in

:10

anes.

ight

There was, it seemes, noe lesse care vsed by the trustee to conceale the summe given, then the name of the pious giver, since it is shutt vp in these indefinite tearmes: A considerable summe yet the imployment which the good steward made of it, will he mill he, discovers it to have

E vj

108 The pietie of Paris.

bene so considerable that it must needes haue passed one hundred thousand liures french, or ten thousand pistolls: for with it, he purchaced two houses, a competent garden, and furnished it with all necessaries, togeither with an answearable liuelyhoode for fortie persons; to witt, twentie men and as many women, which where still to be poore old decayed tradimen &c. All these he disposed of in two different houses, the women being feparated from the men, which yet he contriued fo ingeniously, that one Masse said in a litle chappell, and one reader at table served for them both He deputed one of his Missioners

The to say them factan fifters and for called of left.

Notan of the

in he prou

by t tente

The pietie of Paris to fay their masse, to instructe them, and to administer the facraments: and some of the fisters of the charitie, to affiste and ferue them. This househe called the Hospitall of the name of Iesus; and passed a declaration of this fundation before Notaries, without the name of the Founder at all, that a new name may be giuen him in heauen. And it was approued by my lord Archbifhope of Paris, and ratified by the kinges letters patentes.

s. natit

d pifirchapetent

t with with moode

witt,

to be

s, the

s, the

con-

chaptrable

Hedeioners

110 The pietie of Paris.

of the charities which he procured for the poore cryminells condemned to the Gallies.

ARTICL XVI.

While he was fetlinge a liuelyhoode for these poore artificers, who through their age were not able to gayne their liueing, his compassion was called vpon, to assist others who are scarce worthy to live. These were the Gallislaues, whose double miserie he eyd not with standinge with much pittie. Comfort of conscience he knew they could have none, being burdened with crymes: nor

comfo den wi

he kne

ied w

doubt

they verdid to no

punis to the

the iu shoul were

Marfe withouthouthear

He

The pietie of Paris. 111 comfort of body, being loaden with chaynes, and excesse of want and miserie. And yet he knew too, that to eomfort the comfortlesse, be the subiect what it will, neuer ceased to be a worke of mercy. He doubted not but that their crymes well deserued what they suffered, and that a just verdict had condemned them to noe more then a condigne punishment, in fending them to the Gallies. Yet be conceived withall that it was not the judges sense, that they should perish at Paris, who were sentenced to suffer at Marseilles : and judgement without mercy to those that shew not mercy.

ocured

C072=

nge a thefe

ough

ole to

com-

, to

carce

were

ouble

stan-

(oni-

knew

being

: 101

He takes, then, their fadd

112 The pietie of Paris. and comfortlesse condition feriously into his harte. He instantly applyes his most humble submissions and sutes to kinge Lowis the 13. and the Magistrates, in their be halfe; and obtaynes the old towre at S. Bernards gate for their habitation, till they amount to a competent number to be fent away, accordinge to custome. Thus by his care are they prouided of lodgings. But where must foode be found for body and foule? There is he called to a further follicitude, and charitie, which neuer fayles, finds it ont. Foode for their bodys, for a while, issues out of his owne, and Mrs le Gras smale stocke. And for their foules, the pice las de owne

furnish diuine prouid

Paris of by last 6000. the rel creatu lay cl plenti

the address

whera aboad of S.

donne lyable crame

The pietie of Paris. 113 the pious priests of S. Nicholas de Chardonnet, and his owne Missioners, plentifully furnishes. But soone after, the diuine prouidéce abundantly prouides: for a person of Paris of a vaste fortune, left by last will and testament, 6000.1. a yeare for euer for the releife of those miserable creatures, who sedeferts could lay clayne to nothinge. This plentifull founde is left vnder the administration of the Procuratour Generall of the Parliament for perpetuitie. And wheras the said place of their aboade, was in the Parishe of S. Nicholas de Chardonnet, the Curate therof was lyable to administer the sacraments to them, and to

ition

molt

nd the

halfe;

towie

their

nount rtobe

ge to lodg-

foode

arther

ritie, inds it

odys,

of his

foules,

114 The pietie of Paris.

burie their deade corps, which being a great burden for that poore litle Parishe, Mr Vincent preuayled with the Administratours to allow the faid pressts 300.1. per annun out of the Funde; vpon condition, that they should be obliged to say their Masse, to exhorte and catechise them; and performe other spirituall functions requisite, which they discharge most worthily, and with verie great care and charitie.

Thus were the poore Gallerians well prouided for during their stay at Paris. But what may become of them after their departure from their good foster-father, God knowes. Yet as his providence

reache and d he in figne figne into caud them

be fer cent, them

charit chay panie

befor prepa then

their euer deede

a mo

The pietie of Paris. reacheth from end to end mightily, and disposeth all thinges sweetly, he inspires his heauenlie defignes touching his creatures, into the hartes of seconde causes, to be executed by them. Tho they seeme then to be separated from Mr Vincent, his follicitudes followe them, the golden chaynes of charitie lincke him to their chaynes of iron to accompanie them: nay his care runs before them to Marseilles to prepare them a better lodging then they could expect, or their vnhappie predecessours euer inioyed. To this indeede he was partly mouedby a motiue more humanethen ordinarie, though otherwise a most Christian one, He had

that

Vin-Ad-

the

nnun

con-

1 be ie, to

hem;

which

thily,

and

Gal-

or du.

. But

them

from

God

uidenc

116 The pietie of Paris.

formerly benetaken vpon the Mediterranian sea, and caried slaue into Barbarie, where he found but rude intertaynement, so that he could say with the Poete non ignora mali miseris succurrere disco.

refor

that.

Que

kinge

happ!

mori

aion

pece

Hofi

cordi

tente

was i

Bith

dred

effect

YOU :

letter

by 27

The taste I'ue had of their distresse. Hath wonne my harte to their redresse

He forthwith applyes him-felfe to the most Eminent Cardinall of Richelieu, who was then generall of the Gallies, and to Madame la Duchesse of Aiguillon, his vertuous neece: represents to them the miserable state of the Gallie-slaues; and the extreame want of a Hospitall for them, where they might be assisted in the tyme of their sicknesse. Their pietie procured that such an

The pietie of Paris. 117 Hospitall was built. Here againe was a house, but other helpes were, as yet, wanting. Wher vpon Mr Vincent had resourse to the bountie of that most constantly religious Queene Regent, mother (to kinge Louis the 14. who now happly raignes) whose memorie is in eternall benediction, to deale with him to become the Founder of this Hospitall; which was done accordingly, by his letters patentes in the yeare 1645, and was indowed by his Maiestie with 12000. liures or 12.hundred pistolls. The blessed effects of this royall charitie you may partly know by a letter written to Mr Vincent, by a most charitable gentle-

the

ried

ehe

ne-

fay

mali

esse.

reste

in-

Car

was lies,

10115

the

Illie-

want

ere

1 the

Their

h an

man of Pronence, called Mr de la Coste, who had much contributed to that worke. His letter was as followes.

These are to give you an accompt of the progresse of the Hospitall which was especially established by your pro! curement. You will have vnders toode by my last, how after much resistance, by the helpe of our lord and Master, they gaue vs vp those that were ficke in the Gallies. Certes I am not able to expresse the ioy which those poore saues received, when they fawe themselues transported from that hell, to the faid Hospitall, which they tearme a Paradise, where, at their verie entrie, they seeme cured when their were washe layd i then t

were ware que them?

charir Galli backe

center if they

God',
which
the co

Turke Baptil

The pietie of Paris it? cured of halfe their ficknesse, when they are freed from their vermine wherof they were full. Their feete are first washed, and then they are layd in a bedd, a litle fofter then the borde wheron they were wonte to lye. And they are quite ouerioyed to finde themselues lodged, serued, and treated, with a little more charitie then they were in the Gallie, whither we have fent backe a number of conualescentes who had bene deade if they had remayned there. Truly Sr we may well fay that God hath bleffed this worke which appeares not onely in the conversion of badd Chri-Atians, but euen of the verie Tutkes who crye for holy Baptisme.

much orke.

ves.

ou an sespe-

ir prol

ne vn-

how by the Master,

fe that allies.

to ex-

1 thole

, when

s trank

ch the

there, a

y seemt

120 The pietie of Paris.

ting n

pietie

other

gelica

es 701

loon

shall t

k im

Iha

he c reat

ities

olitari

heth

ew w phich

f fo.

ot alt

touid

The things which I haue hitherto related are part of the new, fresh, growing workes of charitie daylie practifed in Paris; and so placed in the cleare light, and expofed to enery ones view, that the highth of malice hath noe specious ground to lye vpon. And vpon such workes I am resolued especially to insiste, least I might meete with the old fonge, the Catholikes indeede haue formely beneverie holy, but as truth is perished among them, fo hath charitie and sanctitie forsaken them. As to truth perishing the cotrarie hath bene againe and againe made good by better penns then myne, howeuer myne hath not bene wanting

The pietie of Paris. 121
ing neither according to my maler talent. But touching word in the talent in the euanedin relical Maxime: by their fruies you shall knowe them. And pon this fatisfactorie way hall the rest of my labour pon te imployed.

I have sometymes, vpon side, he contemplation of the child reat diversitie of the Charles of Paris, passed some plitarie moments, to trye hether I could invent some we well imployed charitie hich the ingenious pietie of some good people had stalreadie sound out, and soulded for and truly I ardly find it feasible: where we it be in point of corpo-

ting

F

122 The pietie of Paris. rall or spirituall workes of bline the mercy. Such prouisions are feale made both for body and foule, of persons of all ages, fexes, and conditions, and relie infirmities of all kindes; as and in the series of this discourfe will appeare. Shall we begin with those which newly it begin to fall into the miseries of this world? They are ton prouided for , before they lop haue yet the sense to know dep it. Or els with those that con haue so longe experienced and the said miseries, that they man are become fitter for the graue then the world? There is prouision also made for them, to liue comforta. bly, and to end their dayes happily. To be short, the

The pietie of Paris 123 blinde, the lame, the poore, the ficke of what curable desease soeuer, find charitable retreates for their solace and reliefe. Nay the studious and inuentiue charitie of some generous soules, striuing to outuie (as it were) all the rest, have founded a spacious and noble habitation for such as are past all hope of cure; where, in that deplorable and desperate condition, they are affifted and folaced with all the humanitie and sweetnesse imaginable.

es of

sare

and

ages,

and

5; 25

cour-

e be ewly

mise.

y are

they know

that enced

they

or the ? The made nfortal days

Of the Hospitall of the holy Ghost situated neere the Towne house, in a place called the Greue. who perfo

ciamus

The

red Bourg

passio

VIIO

They

loynt

office

ARTICLE XVII.

re the particular charitie of Paris, how can we take a better rife then from the God of Charitie, or euen God-Charitie the holy Ghost (whence this Hospitall takes its name) from whose holy inspirations, both this, and all other workes of Charitie doe originally flowe. It is he who inspires the first good thought of it, he

The pietie of Paris. 125 who workes the will, and performance. Ipse facit Vt faciamus. Saith S. Augustin. To "-

holy

1.

decla

cha-

an wo

from

reuen

Il ta-

whole

h this es o

Aowe

es the

it,

They that were thus inspired were a companie of Bourgesses of good note, who were moued to compassion by a miserable spectacle of poore children; who through their parents death, or extreame want, were reduced to such pouertie that they were readie to perish with hunger and cold. They repaired to the Bishope of the place, who erected a many of them into a Confraternitie to haue a ioynt care to releeue those poore children, which pious office till this day they charitably complie with, as their predecessours had done before them; and that so throughly too, that they gaue them not onely their cares and paines, while they were stronge, and well able;

F iii

but euen themselues too growne old, with all their substance; and so happily ended their dayes among them: and therby it prospered, and grew vpp to what it now is.

moth

and o

tes b

by th

as b tente are w

haue

prop

this

VIIV

late

T

ken

prou

col fully

The establishment as it was begun for the necessitie of the poore children of Parihs, so it is limited to them alone. In such sorte that none can be admitted there, but children borne in Paris or the suburbs, in lawfull mariage, whose fathers and

The pietie of Paris 127 mothers are deade; bastards and others found in the streetes being excluded, as well by the Rules of the house, as by the Kings letters Patentes. How beit these others are well prouided for, as you have seene above, by Mr Vincents care, and his good Ladys cost, which would properly have belonged to this place, but that I was vnwilling to divide what related to that holy man.

be-

t fo

gar C2-

they

t00

their

ppily

nong

ofpe-

what

as it

effitie

of Pa-

them

at no.

here,

Paris

awfull rs and These poore children qualified as aboue, are even taken from the breast into this Hospitall, where they are provided of nourses at the cost therof, and are carefully visited and treated. As they grow vp, they are putt to some trade, as well to masters who reside in the said Hospitall, as to others a-certa

to n

com

with

Th

appar Ther

in a

nou

con

broade.

Such of the boyes, as they find of good witts, and otherwise capable, are bredd vp in learning, and become clergiemen: or els, as well they, as the girles, are prouided for in religion, at the charges of the Hospitall, if they have a will and inclination to that holy course of life.

The rest are disposed of to ferue some persons of qualitie. The boyes which haue learnt any trade, are helped to passe Master. And the girles are assisted with some

The pietie of Paris. 129 certaine summe of money to marie them. And being come to lawfull age, what euer they may have brought with them, is restored to all of them in generall without limitation.

putt

i to

S 2.

thev

ther-

d vp

cler-

hey,

ided

char-

they

ation

of to quahaue elped d the fome

They are clothed in decent apparell, of a violet coulour. There are at this day fome 200 in the house. And besides those, as many as make vp, in all about 230. or 240. at nourse? To all these the common Charities of Paris give subsistance.

Of the Hospitall of the Bleffed Trinitie in S. Denys streete.

ARTICLE XVIII.

CCASIONS, and emergent necessities furnish men with inuentions, we being still called vpon by nature, to prouide for that which we feele most presse vpon vs. By the instinct of the holy spirit, there was alreadie prouision made for the poore fatherlesse children of Paris. But there were an aboundance of others, in and about the towne, who had both father and mother, and lame

those them rish

of fi

woul Wh

their lice de

bado need

> fes, that gays boo

The piecie of Paris. 131 and remayned yet in a more lamentable condition, then those that are deprined of them both. These might perish indeede through want of succour, yet being in the r baptismall innocencie, they would be eternally happie. Wheras those others, by their necessitous and wicked parents, are trayned vp in idlenesse, ignorance, and malice, their parents owne trade (made their miserable childs-parte) and by that badd Arte, to which they needed noe master, they become able cheates, cutpurfes, and theeues, and fo by that accurfed trading often gayne a halter and hell to boote. The Prouost of the

effed

ner-

nish

by

that esse

& of sal-

for chil-

We-

hers,

who

her,

Fevj

Marchands and Magistrates were excited by this probable occasion of future mischeise to the citie, to studie the preuention of it, and to turne threatening mischeise, to ptesent mercy. Which was done as followes.

twen halfe

This

put t

euen liam

tie,

Work

it n

t00

palle

Out

plac

mitt

able

ded

des

Two noble Almans, as it feemes to be intimated, had longe agoe purchaced two Acres of Land neere S. Denys gate, out of a pious designe to lodge poore pilgrims, who coming wearie, might fooner meete with a lodging, then, in a manner, with the towne it felfe. To this purpose they raysed from the grownd a noble faire Hall (togeither with some other buildings) of

The pietie of Paris 133 twentie one fadome and a halfe longe, fixe in breadth, and foure in highth within. This in tract of tyme being put to idle, impertinent, and euen profane vses, the Parliament and Magistrates, out of their wisdome and charitie, rescued it out of profanesse, and applied it to the worke of mercy, for which it now ferues. To witt, they tooke all the boyes which passed seauen yeares of age, out of their poore and vngodly parents hands, and placed them in this Hospitall, the care wherof was committed to fine honest and able Bourgesses, who prouided them of men and maydes to serue them.

ates

ba-

id to

eife,

yas

as it

, had

two

De-

s de-

pil-

earie,

ith a

nner,

To

ryled

noble

with

) 0

134 The pietie of Paris.

As all beginings are weake, so was this in particular: Their smale begining stocke, would hardly reach to two meales a day, till the charitie of some Bourgesses added to their smale pittance.

allow

those

this 1

gayne

neftly

with

a m:

to th

dred

Of 1

K

the

P

They are clad in blew coates and capps: and the place affords them foode, and instruction, till they growe vp to the yeares of discretion, and then they are bound apprentises to certaine iourneymen of divers trades, who to this pourpose are admitted to live in certaine houses all within the compasse of the Hospitall for certaine yeares, and by that meanes to passe Masters. a priviledge which the towne

The pietie of Paris. 135 allowed of, for the good of those poore children, who by this meanes are inabled to gayne their liuelyhoode honestly by their Labours, without being a burden, or a mischeise to be towne, &c. They amount at present to the number of one hundred and sistie.

wea-

two

hari-

ad-

ince.

coa-

pla-

and rowe ifcre-

are

rtal-

stra-

pose

n cer-

pitall nd by

OWIR

of the Hospitall of les enfans rouges, or Gods children, as a Kinge of France would have them called: in the Streete Portsoin neere the Temple.

ARTICLE XIX.

PROVISION being alreadie made, as you haue 136 The pietie of Paris. heard, for poore orfants of Paris as well boyes as girles; as also for boyes taken out of the hands of wicked parents, inuentiue Charitie fetts vpon another Hospitall for the affistance of other fatherlesse, and motherlesse boyes, of the villages round about Paris, being about ten or twelue yeares of age, or vnder. This bleffed worke was founded by that vertuous Lady Margarite Queene of Nauarre, and Duchefse of Bar, whom Belforest qualifies, The Mirour of the Ladyes of her tyme. To this the charitie of good people contributed, and in tract of tyme built a new Chapell and other lodgings.

These to in well to

at th desire

onely

Of the

C christ there

bleh liden thoni The pietie of Paris. 137 These are clothed in rede, to intimate charitie, and as well these, as the blew boyes, gayne parte of their liuely-hoode, by carying torches at the fureralls of such as desire them. They are now onely about a matter of sortie.

s of

pa-

itall

ther

t ten

orke

nee-

cheforest

f the To

rood

nd in new

Of the Hofpitall called the Mifericorde or worke of Mercye.

ARTICLE XX.

HARITIE still sinds new worke, and touches christian hartes to complie therwith. As it did that noble harte of the seconde President in Parliament Mr Anthonie Seguier by name, 138 The pietie of Paris.

rayle

lar h

with

peter

ning

thre

vere

fourt

ceiu

to 1

con

(th imp

oth

peir

one

eac

worthy vncle to his Greatnesse the now Chancelour of France, (of the same name) who followes his pious footestepps, as shall partly be declared hereafter. This Illustrious Patron left nothinge vndone which might contribute to the well, and permanent beeing of this great worke, extending it felfe to the number of one hundred girles, who are plentifully prouided of all things necessarie. So that certainly this charitie could not mount to lesse, all thinges considered, then to thirtie or fortie thousand pounds sterl a vast beneuolence to come all from one bountifull hart and purse.

For in the first place, he

The pietie of Paris 139 rayled them a faire and regular house from the grownd, na- with a verie decent and comous petent chapell therto adioyning. The house confists of This three quarters (a bodie, as it 10. were, and two armes) the ight fourth quarter being induftriously left vnbuilt, to refo to afford a wholfome ayre one to those young children. It len contaynes in the first storie ings (the lower roomes being imployd for refectorie, workeount house, kitchen, washouse and other offices) foure great orth chambers, fingularly well vall peirsed and ayred: in every from one wherof there are 25. iron urse bedds with white couerlets, , le each one hauing her bedd a 140 The pietie of Paris.
part. They are, modestly, hanfomely, and wholfomely attired in violet clothe, and decent linen, and well fedd.

Secondly he hath ordered that they shall all of them be such as want both father and mother: natiues of Paris towne or suburbs: begotten in lawfull mariage, and destitute of all affistance.

Thirdly they must be sixe or seauen yeares old before they can be admitted, where they are enterteyned till they be twentie siue (vnlesse haply they haue leaue for their owne aduantage to goe to some religious house which desires them, or to some good lady, gentlewoman, or Bourgesse to serve them, or to

learne meane furnish

They lorder

and all under t Gouer

dour Gouer

at their

them in or oth Fina

t, bec rection Couns Reque

The pietie of Paris 141 learne some trade by their meanes, and affistance) and furnished with all necessaries. They have ouer each chamber a Mistresse to keepe good order among them, and to bread them vpp in vertue, and all conveniente workes, under the conduct of a graue Gouernante, and learned Doctour of Sorbone, the cheife Gouernour therof 2 fourthly at their departure, the house before allowes each one an hunwhere dred frankes to helpe to setle them in the world, in mariage, mlesse or otherwise.

, and fedd.

dered

em be er and

Paris

otten

desti

ne fixe

ne for

to got

which

e g000 Bour

01 10

Finally the wife Founder of it, bequeathed it to the direction and care of divers Counsellours and Masters of Request, whereof a person of honour Mr Montholon was the cheife in his kinde; as a graue and learned Doctour of Sorbon is alwayes to be the cheife and immediate Gouernour, especially in spiritualitie. The first President of the Parliament, and the Procuratour Generall, are also Surintendants (honorary) of this place.

T

of t

the g

Smit

had 1

Rich

glist

France

tions

gious

1634

vas s that

S.Ar

gate

men Vay

Who

and

Of the charities done to the English Monasterie called our B.

Ladys of Sion by Monsiegneur Peter Seguier Chancelour of France, Duke and Pair &c.

ARTICLE XXI.

T had pleased God in his providence to make vse

The pietie of Paris. of the fingular credit which the graue Doctour Richard Smith, Bishope of Calcedoine be had with the great Cardinall diate Richelieu, to procure the Enspiglish nation an entrie into France, in point of foundations of Monasteries of religious women, in the yeare 1634. which till that tyme was shutt to them. The first. that inioyed this grace, were the Chanonesse Regulars of S. Augustines Order, who now liue in the Monasterie of our Ladys of SionneereS. Victors gate, vnder the gouvernement of Madame Marie Tredway of noble extraction, who was their first Abbesse and euen still gouverns succesfully till this day. The

Was

as a tour

dent

the

are

Ene

HY B.

gneny

14 OF

doil.

in his

e vie

144 The pietie of Paris foresaid most Eminent Cardinall prevailed with the Christian kinge Lowis the 13. for his letters parents in her name; as also with Mons. de Gondy the most illustrious Archbishope for his permifsion and spirituall establishment: all which were afterward verified in Parliament. Vnder this ample establishment, they went prosperously on in their holy callinge, and by much care and frugalitie, they lived competently and contentedly of the smale pensions and portions, which euery one brought; without being burdésome to any, here or els where (for setled foundation, or even any thing towards it, they neuer had any) They tyme.

They

and co

anoyo

ornan

chape

at all,

the wa

Engla

10 2 1

esson

earn

rents

in pla

leach

vne)

their their

did ,

rh:

and vo

The pietie of Paris. Car. They wrought indeede at that the yme, according to their Rule ind constitutions, as well to her moyde idlenesse, as to make de ornaments for their young jous chapell, neuer for any money mif. It all, till by the calamitie of ish the warrs both here and in fter. England, they were reduced ent, to a necessitie to practise a lish effon which they had neuer earnt among their noble paand ents, (who were wont coline n plentie, farre aboue the and each of want, as is well knopen. vne). That is, to imploye their hands to contribute to :heir liuely hoode, which they did, and doe till this day, w h much sweete resignation and vertue, and noe lesse edification to all prudent persons

hich

hout

here

gto-

146 The pietie of Paris. and benedictions from hea- No uen vpon their willing ende- but uours : for indeede some which yeares did passe, wherin they feedi fearce received sufficient to birds maintayne their agent, the inex the most of their meanes was who left at perpetuitie in their ho it the norable and rich frends hads kingd to rayle a standing subfistance infic But where the rage of vio to co lent rebellsleft them but litle able much could not be had, no fand indeed even any thinge fo boun some yeares space, when re mito bellion was at the highth. I for n the meanetyme a great num that ber of fiftie and more poor gentlewomen, being cutt o from their owne, are left t Gods prouidence amon stangers.

uide Chan hous

neue pour The piotie of Paris. 147

hea-

ende-

n they

ent to

t, the

les was eir ho shāds

of via

ut litle

ad, 118

ige to

nen ri

hth.

at num

re poo cutt (

e left

amo!

Nor can we justly doubt, but that sweete prouidence which extends it felfe to the feeding of the inconfiderable birds of the ayre, failes not in extreamities to assiste those who in the first place make it their businesse to seeke the kingdome of God, and his iustice: and fayle not withall to contribute what they are able to their necessarie subsistance, by the moderate labours of their handes, in calamitous tymes. Worthily therfor may they thinke, that in that conjunture, Gods prouidence guided that famous Chancelour to their poore house, of which haply he had neuer heard, till a good neighbour the Apelles, or rather the

G ij

148 The pietie of Paris;

Raphel, of our Age Monf. le Brune, who had the honour of his presence at diner with him, out of his owne goodnesse, without any application or knowledge of theirs moued his greatnesse to heare their musicke at euensonge; which he did, and pleased to seeme well satisfied therwith. After which he had the fingular goodnesse, of his owne accorde, to call for the superiour, and rather graciously to offerre his charitable affistance, then to stay till he were fued to for it. For Madame, sayes he, I beleeue in this tyme who fayes English fayes poore, the Abbesse replyd, my Lord, it is but too true. Why then, quoth he,

did ye to me Lord, afford as to Grea our re fibly good tague friend

truly and him

good who

titie) for the brou

trom bount

The pietie of Paris 149 file did you make noe application to me? Alas, faid she my with Lord, our smale acquaintaine affords vs noe fuch happinesse lica as to have accesse to your Greatnesse: yet in verie deede our reall wants callinge fenfibly vpon vs, we moued our ed to good friend my Lord monrith tague in it. He is my good friend too, replyed he, but oval truly he neuer mentioned it, supe and said merily, reproche only him with it. How beit my faid east good Lord by his diligence illh ewhose knowen zeale needs Ma noe spurring in pointe of chaeuel ritie) preuented our reproche for the next newes we heard, fer broughtvs one thousad liures trom my Lord Chancelours his bountie, by his hands, and G iii

150 The pietie of Paris. with in the same yeare, as much more as made it neere voon 4000. liures or 400. pistolls, togeither with the continuation of his frequent charities, honours, and gainfull visites of all his numerous and illustrious familie, his powerfull fauour and protection vpon all emergent occafions; fo that to Gods honour and his (be it alwayes kept in a gratefull memorie by vs his most oblidged beads women) be it knowen, that that fingularly amiable vifite of his, has bene worth to there poore house, aboue a thoufand pistolls, which still till this day growes to more and more. Sweete Iesus grante that he and his, may live prof-

perou

Of th

Mba

of th

ageo

asy

200

then

The pietie of Parie. 151 peroufly, and in the toppe of honour, and crowne his charities with eternall glorie.

the uent

ain-

rous his

itec=

h0-

aves orie

eads

that vifite

there

hou-

I till

eand

rante

prof-

Of the Hospitall in S. Germains suburbs called la petite Maison.

ARTICLE XXII.

THE children of both fexes being well prouided for, as aboue, the charitie of the good Magistrates was called to the care of poore aged and distressed persons as well men as women, whose age and impotencie hindered them to gaine their liuing. They are divided into two quarters, the men living a part from the women. This house was for the most part as well built as indowed by the bountifull charitie of Mr Boulencour counsellour to the kinge, and President of his Chamber des Compts, who erected many lodgings, and chambers for the lame and impotent &c.

152 The pietie of Paris.

gott

Rall

and

hat

000 to t oth

tun

ina

by s

the 7

pro

uer

Yel

of

They are furnished with meate, drinke, and all thinges necessarie from the Grand Bureaux des pauures, as it is commonly called, which is, in effect the great Court of Audience in order to workes of charitie: of which I intend to make a particular description here after.

Further this Hospitall receiues poore vagabonds, as well boyes as girles, who haue The pietie of Paris. 153 gotten scauld pates, by lying in the streetes, or under shopp stalls or otherwise, who are diligently dressed, purged, and frequently cured, as it hath happened to aboue 200. in this place.

Here are also received poore women who are subject to the falling sicknesse, as also others who are distracted, and run vp and downe the streetes in a frantike manner: who yet by good vsage, are often in length of tyme, recovered to their witts. and had part d by

to

t of

pts,

with nges

d Bu

0111-

, in

Au-

es of

nd to

tion

10-

, as

The Grand Bureau de pauures, prouides this house of a Gouernour who is at present a verie able surgeon, who out of his singular charitie makes

G v

154 The pietie of Paris. choyce todwelle amogst those miserable creatures, the better to be able to affiste them. And he is so farre from in. riching him felfe by his loathsome practife, that contrarily he freely spends his owne fortunes vpon them, in making many medicaments and compositions, with hopes to cure their desparate infirmities (as it often happens) or at least to folace their paines. This good man has another of the same profession to assiste him. in that bleffed imployement. He liues neere to the place, and fayles not to be with them euery day, or euen as oft as he is called for, to applie the remedies which the

his And ther inco

ters reaf
the

of inuc

con cati rep

not of

trar

The pietie of Paris. 155 other prouides, according to his order.

et-

em. in.

ith-

rily

or-

ing

om«

ure

s/as

east

this

the

him

ent.

ace,

vith

1 25

1ap-

the

And wheras this place serues. also for a house of correction, there are two prisons to tame incorrigible persons; and to that effect there are fourePorters taken out of charitie (by reason of some infirmitie) as the rest are, who are orderd to watch ouer the comportmentes of the poore, in point of words, or actions, or any inueteratevice they may haue contracted in their rude education, and accordingly to reprehend them by the Gouernours direction. This is not one of the least charities of Paris, by reason of the drange subjects they are to 156 The pietie of Paris deale withall, wher of some through their decrepit age neede continuall assistance: others in respect of their irregular and accidentall defeafes must alwages haue eyes vpon them: others want witt either to affiste themselues, or to render themselues capable of affistance without much labour : and others finally through their rudenesse and incorrigiblenesse, deserue noe assistance at all, vnlesse charitie taught christians to render good for euill. And to ferue Iesus - Christ in the worst of his members.

G vj

gi

the €0 lig

of the Hospitall of the 300. blind men comonly called the Quinzevingt, or the 15. tymes twentie.

me age

ce:

rre-

ales pon ther

r to le of 1 12-

nally

e noc

cha-

ren

nd to

the

ARTICLE XXIII

ITHER TO we have feene young and old; men and women; fatherlesse and girles; well prouided for, by the pietie of Paris: it must also extend it selfe to their comfort who are even deprived of the comfort of the light. This was longe agoe the care of a greate kinge and S. Lowis, who was the first Foundour of this spacious familie. The first occasion of it, as is deliuered by Belleforest in the first Tome of his Annalls, was the misfortune of three hundred gentlemen who having bene less thostages in the Holy Land, by the said kinge, were trecherously and cruelly sent home to him with their eys putt out, for whom he made this place.

Hilar

alfo v

dons

holy

for th

of In

preffe

400.

thou

glish

haue

Al

llant

heal

nedi

andI

Low

he fr

that

He built them a large church in a place as then a woode, which is in riched with many holy relickes. Wherof the most pretious, are: a peece of our sauiours crosse. Bones of saint Stephen and S. Lambert. A peece of the same S. Stephen first Martyr, as also of S. Matthew the Apostle and S. Blaise. Bones of S. Laurence. Bones of S. John

The pietie of Paris 159 S. Paule, S. Martin and S. Hilarie, with many more.

lle-

fhis

une

nen

ages

faid

and

with 10112 urch

ode,

nany

the

eece

This church is inriched also with may graces and pardons from Rome, granted by Pope Alexander at this holy kinges instance, which for the better understanding of Indulgences, fo well expressed by this B. Pope, about 400. yeares agoe, I haue thought good to give in English word for word as we haue it in the faid Bull.

Alexander Bishoppe, ferones uant of the servants of God, am health and Apostolicall Beness nediction to his most deare alfo and Illustrious sonne in Christ offle Lowis kinge of France. Tho of S. he from whose gift it comes, ohn, that his faithfull doe serve i60 The pietie of Paris. him worthlilye, and laudably, doth, out of the abundance of his pietie (which outstrips as well the deferts and defires of the suppliantes) conferre more vpon such as serue him, then they can any way merite. Yet defiring to render an acceptable people to God, we inuite them to please him, as it were, by certaine alluringe presents, to witt by Indulgences, and remissions cte. that they may be therby more fitted to Gods grace. Wheras therfore (as it was exposed to vs from you) you haue made a house for the blinde of Paris, and built them a church, we desireing that it may be honorably frequented, haue releesed one.

yeard whice God

the postly to all nitem yeare the h

of his mon wing

Aug.

in With

Th Whic, The pietie of Paris 161 yeares pardon of the penance which was inioyned, out of Gods mercy, relying vpon the authoritie of the B. Aposses S. Peter and S. Paule, to all those that are truly penitent and confessed, and yearely visite your church to the honour of S. Remy (the Patron therof) vpon the day of his translation, and three monthes immediatly following. Datum Anagniæ 6. Cal.
Aug. Pont. 6. anno.

ably,

desi-

con*

serue.

way

ren-

le to

lease

taine

itt by

Mons

race.

t was

you or the built.

lyfre-

one.

Of the blind men Boterays writes in Latine Verse to this effect

With in these wals
Three hundred blind are found.
Which holy Lowis
His charitie did found.

162 The pietie of Paris.

In lyuerie gowne

And stiffe in hand. O strange!

They lonely through

The Citties Didalls range.

Before the day peeps out

Their

And Into th

Repair

So that

The

Phat

Enq

Bang

The Which

But

Be Pa

Who When

The

They're vp and gone (For dayes and nightes To those poore soules, are one)

To grope out Churches

By the guessing ayde

Of their discretter staffe, Their way is made.

It proues their eyes,
Their whole supporte and strength Through th' Maze of streetes to bring them home at length.

They every Chapell
Church, and altar find, Each corner of the towne;

Their staffs not blind.

The eyes they've none.

Their learned tongue can prone

The pietie of Paris. Their crying wants; And store of brasse is throwne Into their brazen dish: Which they, at leasure Repairing home ; Adde to their common treasure. So that their staffe, Their hands and feete, doe give What eyes refused; Enough wheron to live, Being toyn'd to that Their Royall Foundour gaue Which then sufficd, But now more ayde doth craue. Be Paris bleft, Whose pious hartes can finde, Wherwith to feede the licke,

The lame, the blinde.

inge!

ne)

enoth

oth.

Of the Hospitall called the Preuidence.

ARTICLE XXIV

I had the happinesse to be in person at the establishment of this pious place: where I sawe a greate solemnitie, the chapell being verie richly adorned, and sett out with daintie mathematicall deuises, the musike excellent, and the sermon most eloquent, made by that samous preacher Mr Lingende Bishope of Sarlate. To witt that most imcomparably vertuous Queene Regent, Anne d'Austrice, was there present not o nitie,

and r Hosp and the i

ting is there in nu

In panie

plarli verie actire

The is, to r

prefer certai

good

The pietie of Paris. 165 not onely to grace the folemnitie, but even bountifully and religiously to found the Hospitall, bestowing a house and spacious garden vpon the inhabitants, situated in S. Marceaux suburbs, and erecting it into a seminarie, where there are alwayes about 80. in number.

to be

blish-

lace:

lem-

g ve-

mati-

ke ex-

most at fa-

gende

Witt.

Anne

refent

In this are fetled a companie of graue maydes, who liue most regularly and exemplarlie in a fecular state, being verie grauely and modestly attired, after the manner of good widowes in the world.

Their bleffed imployement is, to receive, gratis, instruct, and direct (in order to their present and future happinesse) certaine poore maydes, who 166 The pietie of aPris are destitute of Parents and ing, s meanes, and consequently tlevo run great hazard, to loofe and that which can never after- vould wards be recouered; and to harter be putt with all, togeither with accor that irreparable losse; into sesha the high way of perdition. fly fo But Gods prouidence so or- left dered, that they were deliue- noble red from the snare of the breast Fowlers, and they can happily as she finge with the Pfalmist : the neffe fnare is broke, and we are delivered, of the

Meane while all the other 10 wa pious inuentions of Paris to pro had not reached to the preuention of this danger : fo withat however there are multitude lided of hospitalls for the educa tuarie tion of poore girles of a mea red fi ner condition, yet these be

It.

The pietie of Paris 167 ing, for the most parte, gentlewomen of noble extraction and condition, Hospitalls would but verie ill sute with hartes borne to better, which according to humane frayltie flesh and bloode can not eafily forgett. This therfor was left to the ingenious and noble charitie of a Royall breast, Anne of Austrice, who as she had a heauenly Patronesse, that was the mother of the immaculate Virgine, so was she a fitt Patronesse to protect Virgines in earth.

nently

loofe

after-

and to erwitt

int

dition

fo or deliut

of th

happall

ift : th

linered

othe

Paris

he pri

er : i

educ

It was her care then, and withall liberalities, which prouided them of this fafe fanctuarie, where they are secured from the arrowe slying in the day, from businesse wal168 The pietie of Paris. king in the night, from inuafion, and the midday deuill. And while they happily liue in this holy vacancie from danger, they fo improue themselues in vertue, and fine workes, that some of them become capable therby, to be admitted into some charitable monasterie: others in tyme, meete with mariages sutable to their conditions; and some finally by their ripenesse in vertue, and care to follow the fooltepps of their Mistresses, are iudged fitt to be made Mistresses themselves, and to remayne there, to exhibite the like charitie to others, as they themselves had receiued.

Of the

T

ritie 1

T

leligic of a ho

he fir

August bree

gion, icke al acelle

lation lans,

f Yotha

Of the Hospitall named la Charitie in S. Germains suburbs.

nuaeuill.

line

and ne of

erby,

ARTICLE XXV.

HIS is governed by a certaine companie of some Religious men of the Order others of a holy man called bleffed natia rean de Dieu, or Iohn of God, cond he first Institutour of the ly by ame, vnder the Rule of S. Augustine. They adde to the heppi hree essentiall vowes of reeind igion, that of feruing the Micke all their life longe. An and to xcellent Institute, and a rehibite olution worthy of true Chrithers, tians, who give to the world ad 10 conuincing testimonie thery, that the love of God is 170 The pietie of Paris. in their hartes, fince purely for the love of him whom they see not, they loue his litle ones whom they fee: and not in bare words, and discourse, but in the deede doing, and in truth, since the performance of the worke, is an infallible proofe of the truth of loue.

the

Whe

eigh

and

are bec

and

The extent of their Charities goes thus farre, that they admitt of all poore ficke, and wounded persons, of the Male fexe, without exception, faue onely fuch as on haue incurable, or contagious for defeases, hard

The Hospitall itselfe is no- A bly built, well fituated, and cen as neatly kept as most pripate houses in the towne.

The pietie of Paris. 171 What is wholy deputed to the vse of the sicke, consists of three longe galleries or Halls. Wherof the greatest conteynes eightie foure verie hansome bedds, with decent curtins, and is especially imployed to receiue honest poore Burgesses, whose house it may seeme to be (so ordinarily are they lodged there.) The second is garnished with 32. bedds equall to the former; and it is wholie alloted for wounded men. The third conteynes 22. bedds, and is for younge boyes who are cutt for the stonne.

rely

10m

his

ee:

and

eede

the

fth

hari

5,0

t ex

ch a

giou

, and

As to their manner of receiuing the sicke, it is full of humilitie and myldnesse. At their arrivall one of the religious washes their feete, which was the ancient and good manner of hospitalitie. Then they are layd in a bedd alone, as all the rest are (saue the litle children) with faire cleane sheetes, cleane shirtes, pillibeers, night-cappes, and a table-napkin; as also a night gowne, pantoples, a basin to spitt in, and a pott and a cupp to drinke in.

H ij

tho

but

turn

Fo

les

ie i

nera

med

uide

€011

cure

mit

ly,

100

Their manner of treating the sicke, is, to have them visited by the Doctour every day once at least, accompaned by the Insirmarian, the the Apothecarie, and the Surgeon, who orders what physicke they are to take, what to eate, drinke, &c. And still from three houres to

The pietie of Paris. 173
three houres, they take fome thinge or other to refreshe and comfort them; as newlayed egges; brothe, a coulis, gelee, or comfeitures. In fine those, good religious neuer deserte them day nor night, but watche with them by turnes.

and

tie.

aue

aire

hir-

jes,

alfo

5, 2

and

ting

nem

nery

1pa-

, the

Sur

phy-

what

S 10

For the good of their foules they are auertifed vpon their first cominge, to prepare themselues to make a generall confession, as the most excellent and necessarie remedie, Gods mercyfull prouidence oft permiting our corporall sicknesses, for the cure of our spirituall instrmities. Either then presently, in case they be dangerously sicke, or at least the

H iij

174 The pietie of Paris. next day, they receive the holy communion, which is brought to them by the priest before Masse, being accompaigned by all the religious which goe all processionally (with waxe-candles in their hands) singing the Pange lingua, and Veni Creator. Afterwards they heare Masse euery day, which is faid in the fame place, with many other antems and prayers funge by the Religious. They are also taught their Christian doctrine, thrice a weeke, and besides that a religious is appointed to instruct them more particularly in point of their prayers, the Sacraments, &c.

they

ter ar

recit

De 1

wash

the b

with roul

towa

relig

by r

with

hand

poin

fuch

ne i

with fort

Before dinner and supper

The pietie of Paris. 175
they are ordered to fay Pater and Aue, for their Benefactours, while the Religious recite the Pfal. Miserere, and De Profundis, and then they washe their hands, and heare the bleffinge of the table faid with a lowde voyce.

is is

jest

)mous

ally

heir

lin-

fier-

ene-

the

ther

e by

alfo

do

and

ap-

m0"

of

ents,

pper

When any one is dangerously sicke, and drawinge towards his Agonie, all the religious are called togeither by rynging the bell, and come with lighted tapers in their hands, to say the prayers appointed by the Church in such circumstances. That done there is a religious left with them, to assiste and comfort them till death.

Being deade, they are decently and religiously brought out and buried; all the Religious being present with lighted torches in their hads, who say the office of the deade, and singe the Masse of Requiem for the good of their soules.

H iiij

any v

by !

liv. A

0 pital

as th mane

fallin

Char difco

And indeede all thinges are so well disposed in this place, and even so gentilly, regularly, and religiously, as to all conveniences, which concerne either body or soule, that I have oft tymes seene, not onely good Burgesses, but withall persons of greate qualitie, make choyce of it in their sicknesse. And some of the were so much edified with that religious traistement, that a pious Knight of England returned home so well

The pietie of Paris. 177 feafoned with the agreeable odour of that excellent charitie, which he saw done to any without exception) that by his last will and Testament he bequeathed 900. In. ster to that blessed place.

Reli-

ligh-

,who

ade.

Re-

their

this

illy ; y , as

which bule,

ne,

but

qua-

it in

e of

with ent,

En-

well

Of the Hospitall Generall.

ARTICLE XXVI.

There to hath my pen bene imployed in the description of the lesser hospitalls, which I looked vpon as the smaler brookes which fruitfully water the poore mans field: but now I am falling into a Vast Ocean of Charities, where it is hard to discouer either land or limite

HV

178 The pietie of Paris.

ere, Teig

rie.

are

ned of th

ftrat

mon

ple,

le t in (

the

T

mol

ces

grou

lar c ble

per

in a

fide

It is called, but one (Hospitall Generall) but branches it selfe into fixe vaste places. That which beares the name, and has the furintendance of all the rest, is situated in S. Vi-Aors suburbs (close by the Abbaye of that name) and is knowne by a more particular name, our Ladys of Pittie, which the Masters and Administratours of the place built, having to that pourpose, bought divers houses and gardens, and alloted them all to receive, lodge, and nourish poore old women, and younge girles, wherof there are at this houre twelve hundred and odde.

The Hospitalls depending ypon this, are, the Salpetri-

The pietie of Paris. 175 ere, Biscestre, Scipion, the Teignierie, and the Sauonnerie. In which sixe places, aboue 8000, poore creatures are conteyned, and mainteyned at present, by the care of the kinge, and the Magistrates, and the free and common charities of all the people, which is received in smale trunkes or boxes, placed in Churches and shopps, all the towne over.

bitall

fe -

That

and

Vi-

the

and arti-

Pit-

and pla-

OUI"

ouses

them

and

men,

herot

relue

nding

petri

The Salpetriere is farre the most ample of all these places, being built from the ground in a faire and regular quadrangle, and is capable of source or sine thousand persons. It is sinely situated in a medowe, by the ryver side, ouer against the Arce-

H vj

180 The piecie of Paris.

bro rece

bed

nide

ges

tion

T

an a

a lit

burb

haue

WOT

this

Who

ever

des.

T

main

ploye

ate i

des

sed !

nal. It was especially deputed to the vse of vagabonds and beggers, which importuned and infested all Paris, whither they swarmed from all the Prouinces. It is diuided, in the vse of it, into three quarters. One quarter is imployed to logde poore families not otherwise able to line. Another for men who are oblidged to worke according to their abilities. And the third for litle girles, euen from two yeares Kes , being built fromblo Scipion is in S. Marceaux fuburbs, and is wholie imployed in a worke of fingular charitie. To witt, poore women with child who have not meanes at home to be

The pietie of Paris. 181 brought to bedd, are freely received there, brought to bedd, and lye inn, being prouided of nourfes and all thinges fitting in fuch a condition.

epu=

rtu-

ris,

di-

into irter

oore.

able

men

orke

ties.

gir-

eares

eau

in

Digu-

poore

haut o be The Castle of Biscestre, is an ancient building standing a litle out of S. Victors suburbs. It is for those who have strength and abilitie to worke. There are in it at this tyme about 1800. men, who are kept closely to the exercise of their divers trades.

The Teignerie is in S. Germains suburbs, and is imployed to keepe 120. who are troubled with scauld heades. As the fauaterie is alloted for the charitable inter-

182 The pietie of Paris.
taynement of 60. poore sicktaug

it by

that

Vit

15 C

ther

ther

Ref

tell

MO

ble

09

lie boyes.

Now as this is the thinge of most publicke and generall concerne of all the rest, as being a royall establishment, and royally endowed by his Maiesties liberall concessions in many kinds. Andas the end of it, is, not onely to releeue the poore for the present but to preuent pouertie and beggerie for the tyme to come, greate arte and industrie is vsed, to trayne vp the younger sorte in such manufactures, as may alwayes afford them an honest livelyhoode: and others, who though stronge and lustie, and well able to worke, yet chused rather to live in idlenesse, and begThe pietie of Paris. 183 ge their breade, are now taught, and forced to gayne it by their labours. Which, that it might be followed without any interruption, it is ordered by publicke authoritie, that when any of them chances to be ficke, they are transported to the Hostel Dieu that generall Refugium afflictorum which neuer refuseth any.

ck-

inge

ene-

reft,

ish-

wed

eon=

ndas

lyto

prelertit

ne to

Atrie

oun factur

afford

poder

Aron able

ather

begi

Hence it is that the greatest officers of his Maiesties Courts of Iustice, Magistrates, &c. are intrusted and take a religious concerne in the management of this vaste worke, in qualitie of honorable Suruisours, having store of able, honest, and intelligente Burgesses, to putt in

184 The pietie of Paris.

in execution, what by their frequent affemblies, and conferences, is found most conduceing to the publike weale-fare.

reput

Polie

Hosp

Hour

of the

and I

place

proue

lume

affore

ten o

kes a

poffe:

benef

ced t ferren

that n

places)

treafus

and w

And noe lesse care is taken for the spirituall aduancement, of those laysie vagabonds, who were too neglectfull of their foules good, and would willingly have lovered it out, in the streetes, and by corners, with too probable hazard of eternall perdition, had they not bene forced in , according to the Gospell, with faire hopes to gayne the day-pennie of Beatitude. This care is principally left to the wife conduct of a Doctour of Sorbon of great learning and vertuous

The pietie of Paris. 185 reputation. His name is Mr Polier Gouernour of this Hospitall in cheife; Direcour of the visitation; and of the Carmelits. He humbles himselfe to take a place, and live among these poore beggers. Which as it is a place of litle splendour, so proues it to him of leffe emolument, saue onely that it affords him full vtterance for ten or twelue thousand frankes a yeare, which he stood possessed of, in patrimonie or benefices, before he imbraced that deare beggerlie preferrement. Blessed is the man that walketh not after gold, nor placeth his hopes in the heapes of treasure: Mr Polier is he, and we will prayle him. And

their

COT.

CO11=

reale=

is ta-

luan-

e va-neg-

100d

haue

Atree.

h t00

ernall benc

to the

pes to f Beau

rincl"

anduct

on of

186 The pietie of Paris:

right well may we, fince he gives not onely what he has, telate but euen what he is, himselfe, which is harder to be parted withall. He giues ouer mention his tyme to the necessities of hed the poore, and facryficeth his they repose to their rest. He has hisva the follicitudes of all the sint fixe places vpon his owne hapte shoulders, being affisted with how a matter of twentie pious harit Priests, who incessantly, vn- ited der his directiones, preach, hem, teach, instruct, comfort, confesse, communicate, &c. who inde, but the Catholike Church alone, is able to shew, fuch the fruites; such men; such manners; fuch affistances, shewen okee to the poore for Gods pure Mat ioue alone?

Th Here

greate

The pietie of Paris. 187, cehe Here I must not omitte to has, elate to Gods glorie, and miel. the honour of those excellent par Ladys of the charitie, so often oner nentioned aboue with deseries of red commendations; that this they were the first mouers to e has this vaste worke: for so I finde the it, in the first booke and 45. orne chapter of Mr Vincents life, with who was often, in their weekly pious tharitable assemblies, solli-yn zited, yea importuned by them, to give way to, and accompanie their zeale in that c. who kinde. But his graue counfell till was, that they went too fich faste a pace for him (whose man custome was to walke slowly) cheven to keepe companie with them,

That it was a businesse of so greate importance, and fo

188 The pietie of Paris.

vast extent, whether one loo-felfe to ked vpon the manner how to jures compasse it, or the meanes to hey a mainteyne it, that it required gaine, a longe and mature delibera-10e va tion. For the rest, that he was many fingularly edified with their ance zeale, and infinitly bleft God mbute in it. And truly he had greate in G reason to prayse God, who ender had so inflamed and dilated be to the hartes of those good Ladyes, that they vsed more industrie to be deliuered of medet their meanes to pious vies, a the then even the most coverous wretch to scrape it togeither. The first lady that spoke, had a mynd to be quitt of fiftie the thousand liures which she or the freely offered. The fecond the terms of the freely offered. was readie to oblidge her-

The pietie of Paris 189 elo elfe to give three thousand iures annuall rent in fine, mesto hey affured him againe and puited gaine, that there should be heval nany ladyes of their acquaintheil ance were resoluted to con-1600 ribute in a verie large meagreate ure. Good Mr Vincents most ender harte was noe longer lilate to refifte fo deliciously ounding affaults, which he orem o visibly discouered to prode edd eede from their loue to God with a their poore neighbour, nero there his faintly foule was nseparably lodged. In aword, e, hi ne gaue way to their inuingififti de feruour to gett vtterance ch shor their monyes. And to give testimonie for his owne e he part that he was noe lesse sure 190 The pietie of Paris. then flowe, and that at longe Mea runing he was able to ouer-fortes, take the swifteste charitie, not be Where vpon he had prefently What recouse to that heaven-borne vholid breast, the Queene Regente, armes and obteyned, of her free to have charitie, the salpetriere, as threw he had before the castle of strong Biscestre, which he and those ringe, vertuous Ladys, vpon better vorke confideration, and feconde owner thoughts, freely configned and o vpp into the handes of the little o Magistrates, who had not other onelie stronger armes (for with the strongerand more couragious number hartes they could nothaue, Gods to wealde so heavie a frame maker but by their power withal uer w they were able to call many tently hands to lighten the burden Lidys

Th

The pietie of Paris, 191

longe

ouer-

aritie,

fently

borne

gente

er free

re , 20

Ale of

d thole

better

econde

afigned

of the

ad no

s (for ragiou

thaue,

frame

Witha

I man

burda

Meane while those mulieres fortes, valiant women, would not be quitte beaten backe, What they were not able wholie to graspe with weake armes, they would not fayle to haue a finger in. Nay they threw notable summes into stronger hands: not much caringe, by whom, so God his worke were done. By their owne, and good fathers, care and coste then, a great quantitie of linnen, beddes, and other moueables, togeither with ten thousand shirtes, by number, were prouided for Gods new house-keepers, to make the poore welcome, Neuer was pouertie so competently fitted, by fo greate Ladys daintie hands; who have opened them to the needie, and stretched out their palmes to the poore. Let their workes prayse them in the gates, of heaven.

Of the great Hospitall called l'Hostel-Dieu, or Gods house in Englishe,

ARTICLE XXVII

of this vaste families may well be called Hic labor, Hoc opus, a worke rather to be admired, then to be expressed to the full. It is a feawhich still so ebbs and slowes, that it is continually high water, still a full fea there. Scarce a day in the yeare passes, but there are 50 100 ne

too, a part to poore

being backer or bein

in a w

10. at

come g year

they wantitude the are or count that le What k hem gionni

etters

The pietie of Paris are 50. 60.80.or some tymes 100 new commers, and happly too, a like number may depart to make place for their poore neighbours, whether as being recouered, and fent backe to their owne howses, or being fent to their graues. In a word this sea is euer so rowing, and fo growne, that 10. at least, or 25. thousand, come and returne, or dye in i yeares space. But who are hey who receive all these nultitudes of people I pray? who are they, of what towne or countrie? What are they, of what fexe age or condition ? What kind of infirmitie brings hem thither? Of what religion must they be? With what etters commendatarie must eedie,

ses to

brayle

en.

called

ouse

ption

milie

labor,

tobe

ressed

chstill

titis

f, fill

a day

there

210

7

194 The pietie of Paris. they come to be admitted?

The answers to these Querees will fully euidence the boundelesse charitie of this blessed house, and shew it to be Gods House indeede which is shutt vp from none. Gods I fay, who opens his hand and replenisheth euery creature with benediction; who is noe accepter of persons, but maketh his funne to ryfe vpo the good, and the badd: and rayneth vpon the just and the vniust.

Whence are they whom they receive? That question inter is neuer asked in this place. Title They see them to be men, to fi and consequently to be their Im neighbours, according to S. Augustins generall rule, ene-

rie mi with neigh

to lo Of that

neith walte of th trie quel may Vnde them

W

The pietie of Paris 195 rie man is neighbour to euerie man, without exception: and if neighbours, those then whom God hath commanded them to loue.

tted?

Que-

e the

this

it to which

Gods

d and eature

isnoe

it ma-

pổ the

: and

nd the

whom uestion

place

men,

e their

g to S

le, of

Of what towne or countrie? that they iudge not necessarie neither, because sith all the waste world is the wise mans countrie, all the inhabitants of the world, are their countrie men, vnlesse, haply, that question be asked that they may be better inabled to vnderstand them, and serue them by the helpe of some interpreter, whom their charitie has readie, or endeuours to find out, to which effect I my selfe haue bene sent for.

Who are they? That againe as litle troubles the good crea-

196 The pietie of Paris: tures. They see poore Christ intheir infirmitie ad pouertie, &he has just title to enter into his owne house. Be they men, be they women; be they old be they younge; be they poore be they rich; it imports not; if they be onely sufficiently ficke, they are fitt matter for their fpirituall commerce, and in that name alone fufficiently commended to them: they have quarters a part for both sexes, and hartes dilated by charitie, euen readie to lodge more then their otherwise vast house is capable of. Whence it is that they laye fometymes two, yea or three poore boyes in owne bedd, vpon which I haue obserued some protestant lookeing still a fqu with those charin charit curu.e inani

mall indersto th

portu to o ouer

chari she h

to all: for cliues

to fui on a Creda

W

The pietie of Parie. 197 a squinte, eye that particular with more scandall, then all those and other excesses of charitie with edification. O curue in terris anima & cœlestis inanis! o animalis homo! o animall, or carnall man, who inderstands not what belongs to the spirit? Did they importune any body to come to oppresse them with an ouerplus of labour? Or must charitie be blamed because she has a latitude of harte to Suffer all, to Solace all, to doe good to all? Must they be blamed for chusing rather to saue the liues of two in one bedd, then to fuffer one of them to dye on a dunghill, or in a ditch? Credat indeus appella hand ego. What kind of infirmitie ertie,

rinto

men,

y old

poore

noti

ently

erce,

fuffi-

hem:

rt for

lated

lie to other-

ole of

lave

three hedd ,

ig Ail

Liij

198 The pietie of Paris. renders them capable of being admitted there? Marrie enen euery one. Old age, which is it selfe a desease; feauers, goutes, proxes, the stone, woundes received in warrs, or by misfortune; any thing, in fine, which either Hypocratis or Galian vndertooke to cure, faue onely the plague or pistolence. Nor doe they except against them neither for their owne particular safetie, but for the saltie of all, fince while they refuse them there, they goe to receiue, to assiste, and serue them, at the Hospitall of S. Lowis, which is alloted for that purpose alone. In which heroicall seruice, asit is obserued, though divers of them

haue as for red r

them Domi

W letter paine

but to conduens

by o holy the p

How

to at Of be?

they not The pietie of Paris 199 haue bene strucken therwith, as some of themselues assured me, yet neuer any of them dyed therof. Sit nomen Domini benedictum.

arrie

ige,

ase;

, the

ed in any

ither

ider-

ythe

r doe

nei-

e of

efule

o re-

ferue

of S.

which

is ob-

them

With what commendatarie letters must they come accompained? Verily with noe other but their crying miseries, seconded with the kinge of heauens letters patentes written by one of the penmen of the holy G. S. Matth. saying, in the person of Christ, What you did to these little ones, you did to me. How ca euer a more powerfull commendation be addressed to any Christian harte?

Of what religion must they be? Here indeed, it seemes they might make a resusall not irrationall; since being

I iiij

200 The pietie of Paris. fometymes infidelles, they hauebut a weake clayme to Christian charities, while they deney Christ: or being protestants, and not communicating with them in the facraments, in vnitie of faith, why should they share with them in the charitable fruites therof? Nay fince they obstinatly deney the merites of good workes, in opposition to holy scripture, they merite not at all to participate therin. How euer, none are refused by them, who have learnt of their holy father, that to assiste and doe good to every one, tho they had otherwise hurt Vs , or wished our harme, is the true, perfect, and onely religion.

uer v

who

repol

recko

Gods

all. T

are a rarel

teene

2000

palle

certai

the D

great

barlie

ociate

Inthe

he ple

According to this vaste,

The pietie of Paris. illimited, Christian way, of charitie they proceede. And as they keepe alwayes a free and open House, so they neuer want good store of guests who eate, and drinke, and repose therin, whitout ere reckoning with their Host, its Gods house, and God payes all. Their ordinarie numbers are alwayes vaste; they have rarely lesse then 1700.or eighteene hundred; often tymes 2000. nay sometymes they passe three thousand, as I was certainly informed by one of the Doctours therof. Yet that great Prouisour who with fine barlie loanes and two fishes could sociate a farre greater multitude in the wilde deferte, can when he pleaseth, and doth in due

they

ne to

they

pro-

nuni-

facra-

, why

ther-

good

holy

ot at

How

d by assiste

no they vished

rfect,

afte,

tyme, open the hartes and purses of the good Parisians to feede those huge numbers of his distressed members.

Of th

der

dr

ris,

first v

the po

uenus

in the

com

comi

of G

And however their constant annuall reuenues mounte to an immense summe, to witt, to two hundred fiftie eight thousand three hundred and therteene liures french, as it is stated by the Administratours of the place, yet are they still oblidged to haue their hands vp to their heauenly forterfather for fixtie feauen thousand three hundred liuers (some tymes lesse, some tymes more) in comon yeares, which yet out of his singular mercy, neuer fayles to ryse out of the free charitie of particular persons,

and

bers

rs.

ftant.

te to witt,

eight

as it

iltra-

t are

haue

hea-

fixtie

hunomon

charle

Of the first and principal Founders or benefactours of this place, as I find it in the Antiquities of Paris.

ARTICLE XXVIII.

In the yeare 660. S. Landry the 28. Bishope of Paris, in the raigne of kinge Clouis the fecond, was the first who putt a hand to this holie worke, now called Gods house, where he nourished the poore out of his owne reuenus. This we find recorded in these tearmes: S. Landry commanded the Hospitall, commonly called the house of God, to be built neere our ladys Church, and maintayned the poore out of his owne stocke.

Was

Leg

Ho

plifi

led

With

mai

plac

Who

geo

He

gre

The

Wer

and 160

ma

fed

In the yeare 1258. (according to Gaguin) S. Lowis kinge of France, imployed a great summe, to inlarge the said Hospitall, and to augment the reuenus therof, as saith William Nangis in his life.

The Chapell was built by a Bourgisse of Paris named Gudart Mocreux as appeares vpon a plate of brasse, in old rymes.

A certaine Mocreux by surname, A master changeur of good same This chapell in Gods house did make May he in's glorie ere partake.

In the yeare of our Lord 1535. Chancelour Pratte, who The pietie of Paris. 105 was afterward Cardinall, and Legate in France, made this Hospitall be verie much amplified, by the addition of one spacious Roome which is called the Legates Hall. He gaue withall a great substance to maintayne the poore of the place, the Religious women, who serue them: and the surgeons, Doctours, and to buy Physicke.

his

cor-

OWIS

red a

the the

aug-

f, as

1 his ilt by

imed

eares

n old

anne,

anne

lmakë ake

Lord

who

In the yeare 1602. kinge Henry the greate, caused the greate and litle Hall of S. Thomas to be reedified. They were begun the foresaid yeare and were finished in the yeare 1606. togeither with the three massie pillers which were ray-sed out of the river.

Thus by many hands, and

206 The pietie of Paris.

fundrie additionall endeuours, at divers tymes, it grew vp at length into a huge bulke: yet for all that, it was neither answerable to their large hartes, who have the care of it, nor to the vaste number of the poore and needie which continually superabounds. What did prouident and vaste charitie, which will be confined within noe bounds, suggest in these straittes? Marrie, wheras the land could allowe them noe elboroome, the place being limited on all fides (to witt with twostreetes, our ladys church, and the river) they forced the river to afford them place making a bridge ouer the backe of it, vpon which they

long again open for pan othe rayl state

qua mod en the riue

affor the noe the

The piotie of Paris. 207 haue gayned a faire, large, and longe gallerie, and by that againe, they discouered a way opento a greater inlargemét: for having purchased a companie of old buildings on the other side of the water, they raysed vpon their ruines a stately vaste, and euen a royall quarter, confisting of three most spacious Halls, all of hew en stone. Nor are these and the old halls divided by the riuer, but it is euen it, which affords a faire large court in the middle of them; which is noe lesse agreeable to the eye then vsefull for the ficke to take the ayre, and to ayre the whole house.

de=

ige

was leir

the

er-

ni-

1100 rai=

and 160-

mi-

with

rch,

lace the they

208 The pietie of Paris

Of the number of the divers halls and offices, and the disposition therof.

ARTICLE XXIX.

LL the anciët building consists of soure great Halls, and seauen offices. The Legats Hall and the new Hall are appointed for sickewome. The Hall of women brought to bedd, is assigned for their lying inne The Hall of the infirmerie, is alloted for men that are most sicke. The office of S. Denys, is for those that are wounded. The office of S. Thomas, for sickemen. The office belonging to Dame Priorest giou the c wash the l the l of the who teens

truni dress vse.

is de ficke ged, with

Apot men

drogi nesse.

The pietie of Paris 209 oresse and three other Religious, is imployed to winde the deade. The office of the washe-house, is vsed to drie the linen of the ficke, and that of the communitie. The office of the Watchers, for those who watch with the ficke fifteenne nights togeither. The office of her who keepes the trunke and the Relickes, and dreffes the Church, for that vse. The office of the Porter, is deputed to receive the ficke, to fee them vifited, lodged, and confessed: who is withall to give out bread and wineforthem. There is also an Apothecairerie, where oyntments, salues, and medicinall drogues are kept in a readinesse. A great wash house for

halls ition

ding

reat

The

mé.

ight

cheir

e in-

men

ffice

that

e of

The

Pri

210 The pietie of Paris. all the clothes in generall. A litle one, where thrice a day they wash the linen of fuch as are more greenously ficke. The vesterie, out of which the ficke are furnished with bedds', which yet might rather be called the trash house wherin all the poore people's riches, I meane, their ragges, are kept for their vse. There are also many more places, for the Priests (who are ten constatly, besides many others who out of their particular deuotion come frequently to instruct ad comfort the sicke) and domesticall fernants &c. as euery one will eafily conceiue. There are also foure Doctours of Physicke intertayned in ordinarie, with fur-

geőst

of th

ł

A multin

ded, painfor of about of S.

make of the

in the

The pietie of Paris. 211 geosto the number of twelue.

day has

ke.

with

ra-

le's

ges,

ces,

ten

v to

s & E.

c011=

oure

iter-

of the number and qualitie of those who tend the sicke

ARTICLE XXX.

A LL these Halls, and offices, and all these multitudes of sicke and lame creatures, are looked to, tended, and prouided for, by the painfull ad perpetual labours of about 100. vertuous Nuuns of S. Augustines order (who make their solemne professio of the three vowes of pouertie, chastitie, and obedience, in the presence of the Deane and Canons of our Blessed Lady, who have all spirituall and temporall jurifdiction in this place). These fewe religious virgines (fewe, I fay, compared to the vast numbers of the sieke) freely renouncing their owne libertie, and all hopes of wordly preferment, to become the feruants of the most poore and despicable seruants of God: that I may not fay, their slaues, since a more abiect and flauish life can hardly be deuised. Whence Boterays, an ancient Poete, admiring the charitie, and constancie of the faid Religious women who ferue the ficke amidst fo much filth and infection, expresses himselfe in foure latine verses to this effect.

212 The pietie of Paris:

They of fu

To dre

festi Hence

men But

teligi cular full ( and h lyabl

the cle

tent, a puden tymes

the pa

go100

The pietie of Paris. 213
They make themselves the saues of sicke and lame,
To dresse the loathsome sores, we scarce dare name.
Their baulme is goare; their civet festered wounds;
Hence th'odour of their Vertue

tuall

reli-

um-

v re-

rtie,

pre-

ser-

eand

their

biect

y be

ays,

ancie

onien

mids

tion,

foure

ect.

mere abounds.

But what doe these good religious performe in particular, or rather what disgust-full drudgeries, abiections, and humiliations are they not lyable to? They washe all the clothes, of those multitudes of nastie, goarie, impotent, and euen, too often, impudent people. I have some tymes bene a spectatour of the painfull labours of those poore maydes in the most rigorous cold of winter, is not 214 The pietie of Paris: with edification, certainly not without confusion to my selfe and others, to see them striue to purchace the same heauen we all pretend to, at so deare a rate, while we are confident to buy it for a fonge At so deare a rate, I say, speking according to flesh and bloode, though otherwise it beares noe proportion to that ineffable, eternall, waight of glorie we all ayme at. Truth out of the Apostles mouth, puts is out of doubt, the passions, afflictions, or sufferances of this tyme, are not condigne, or any way comparable, to the greatnesse of the future glorie which shall be renealed in Vs. Thence they stand in the river all the day longe in great

To fliffe those or sno ther is it, with hands

habite rude v diama

fome and

(which imaging the be poore dying

thing holie ( ten,01

fuch a

The pietie of Paris. 125 stiffe bootes, not vnlike to those of fisher men, be it frost, or fnow, or blowe what weather it will, they are hard at it, with their beetles in their hands, being many tymes all garnished round about their habites with isheakles, the rude winters cristalls, or riuer diamants. To witt they have some thousands of sheetes and shirts to washe, fuch (which I leave to every ones imagination) as come from the bedds, ad backes of those poore, ficke, wounded and dying wretches. Certainly nothing but the vnction of the holie spirit could euer sweeten, or euen render tolerable, fuch abiecte and loathsome imployments, ainly

o my

them

fame

to, at e are longe

y, spe-

h and

rife it

othat

ight of

Truth

outh,

the pal-

rances

ione,0

to the

e glori

11 7/50

heriver

a great

216 The pietie of Paris.

Further they must every one in their turnes serue them with their meate, deinke, and all thinges necessarie. They must turne and winde them in their bedds, make the same, dresse their scabbs, and wounds &c. watche them amidst the gastly horrour of the night, where death is domineering in the Hall round about them: finally affiste them dying in great numbers, winde their deade bodyes, and fend them to their graues.

This is truly fo admirable, as it would hardly be thought credible, were it not enery day obuious to the eyes of all commers: and more admible would it yetappeare, were

it not

if no

but I

Forle

of the

tants

shall

propo

onehi

2000.

as we.

100. 0

twent

Nunh

Which

ged a

men w

One G

find by nands f

one fic

If for a

su oppr

The pietie of Paris. 217 if not onely beheld in grosse, but looked into in particular. For let vs make computation. of the numbers of the affiftants and the affished, and we shall discouer a strange disproportion. The affistates are one hudred onely, the affifted 2000. (now more, now fewer, as we haue feene aboue) now 100. compared to 2000. is twentie to one, so that every Nun has twentie to her parte. Which I presume will be judged a fufficient burden by all men who well considere it. One Garde or keeper (as we find by experience) has her hands full to tend and watche one ficke person, especially if for any longe tyme: what in oppressing burden hath one

and

hey

lem

the

and 120

r of

do-

und

ım-

po=

their

able,

ught

uery

dmi-

Were

K

218 The pietie of Paris.

nun being charged with the care of twentie, not for a smale tyme, not by spirts, and at her owne choyce and pleasure, but at all tymes, by obligation of a vowe as longe as life lasts? Certainly one might truly affirme of those good soules, that they suffer a burden Aetna grauius, did they not experience in themselues what their holy father assures them, that they who loue, suffer indeede, the same thinges, but they are not bordensome to the Leuer, pra amore non sentiunt loue lets them not feele it, which truth all beholders may reade in their faces: for neuer was bride more gay and cheerefull amidst her parents vpon her pear eue, may

mar

tha add thol stric

chari Pari

but all, amp

driu or t

The pietie of Paris. 219 mariage day, then they appeare amidst their beggars euery day: fo that I hope I may not improperly applye (by way of participation) that of the canticles which is addressed to the whole Catholike church, to this illustrious parte of it: multæ filiæ congregauerunt divitias, many charitable maydes, and men of Paris, have heaped riches togeither; some by one charitable inuention, some by another, but you have outstripte them all, by the huge vnlimited amplitude of your charitie, which may feeme, at once, to driue the whole commerce or trading of all the workes of mercy corporall and spirituall, with the whole world,

or a

ts,

s,by

onge

one

uffer

, did

ather

who

ame

tbor-

by R a

them

ich all

their

bride

ill a-

Kij

220 The pietie of Paris. without exception. And conclude with S. Athanasius that if holy Virgines be a certaine marke of the true Church, since none but a virgine mother brings out virgins, you more and more confirme the fame truth, fince to your virginitie, which is truly Angellike, you ioyne charitie which is the God-like vertue indeede, yea God himselfe. Deus est charitas, which by your holy practifes appeares to be putt as absolutly in her raigne, as the condition of this miferable life may permitt.

afte

p00

beir

to t

cor

the

tier

futt

Are

beir

dans

it [

that too

Line euer blest, deare mayds, adorne your state

And pious sexe, and placet at highest rate.

one would have thought,

The pietie of Paris. 221 after the obseruing of all that hath bene said of this vaste place, that pietie had noe more to haue proiected in relation to it, yet some zealous soule, conceived that it was not enough, to releeue poore people in their ficknesse, and to send them home, being prittie well recouered to make place for others, according to the necessitie of the place, vnlesse their charitie prouided further, for their future well beeing, and reestablishmet in their accustomed strength and vigour; relapses being frequently found more dangerous then the sicknesse it selfe. Here vpon it was, that those cosiderate persons tooke a house not farre di-

1

at

ne

0=

011

he

11=

6/1

ich

11-eths

ur

be

ne,

fe-

5,

t

K iij

222 The pietie of Paris.

stant, where those new conualescents haue libertie, to passe a longer tyme, in that fresher ayre, and so wholie to confirme their strength.

The good fisters of the Hostel - Dieu haue yet two houses more which depende vpontheir charitable affistace; to witt S. Lowises in S. Laurances suburbes, a most specious, magnificent, and truly kinglike building, whose Maiesticall aspect speakes the greatnesse of the royall Foundour, Henry the greate: and an other, called la Santé, a litle distant from S. Marceaux suburbs. And they are both alloted to the releife of poore people who may chance to be afflicted with the plague, who their their Hole their

abie nable fice most

So t rate man goo

noe ritie his f for e

The pietie of Paris. 223 these goode soules have the heroicall charitie to tend. In their ordinarie imploy, in the Hostel-Dieu, they freely giue themselues ouer to the most abiect and slauish life imaginable. But in this, they facrifice vp themselues to the most dismale death possible. So that they putt the highest rate vpon their charitie, that man is capable of: as is made good by our faujour himselfe noe man hath a greater charitie then to giue his life for his friends. Liue they happie for euen.

011=

, to

that

eto

the

tvo

nde

áce;

au-

fpe-

ruly

Ma-

the

Oun-

alitle
ix fuboth coore
to be whi

K iiij

224 The pietie of Paris.

Of the Hospitall called our Ladys for the Incurables.

ARTICLE XXXI.

putt a periode to this smale worke, but industrious charitie has yet further to goe, and more to prouide for: if she cannot find a fitt and setled place for the poore incurables in all the greate varietie of Hospitalls yet sounded, she will have one sounded on sett purpose for them alone; where if she cannot cure their desperate deseases, she will, at least, solace them in their continuing afsictios.

And christ with affect that crea

they their

a par them feem

The first this h

condiberaling freed

duties as los o but al

of entr

The pietie of Paris. 225
And this bleffed office of christianitie, is performed with so much sweetnesse, and affectionate care in this place, that those poore desolate creatures, observing, that they suffer not alone, but that their brethren in Christ, beare a part of their burden with them, by compassion; they seeme to be halfe cured.

adrs

auc

this

t to

for:

ein-

e Va-

oun-

01111-hem

nnot

hem

tios.

The illustrious person, who first invented and sounded this heavenlie habitation, seconded by the bountifull liberalities of his pious Maiessie Lowis the XIII. who freed them not onely of all duties beloging to the crowne as los & vents, maine morts & c. but also gave them his rightes of entrees of wine & ctogeithet

Κv

226 The pietie of Paris.

with a generall exemption from all subsidies and impositions &c. By his letters patentes of Aprill 1637. This illustrious Patron, I say, did so litle affecte to feede of the emptie huskes of worldly reputation that he caused his name not to be putt in the kinges letters of establishement. Yet to Gods honour, his, and his noble families, I shall not feare to offend, if I publish to the world, that it was the most religious and Eminent Cardinall de Rushfaucaud, who liued, beyond the ordinarie course of nature, to see a good parte of his designe on foote. To which he contributed bountifully. To witt he endowed the place with, a tho frantixt who chu year

this was in c val a la

vpo it fi

Ort

The pietie of Paris. 227
yearly rent in perpetuil of three thousand and sixe hundred frankes, or three hundred and fixtie pistolls: and layd downe where with to build a faire church, and two Halls, in the yeare 1637.

Y OME

gic.

2f-

ptie

not

let-

ecto

110t

blish

s the

inent

who

marie

fee à ne on ribu-

itt he

th , 2

The place fixed vpon for this most agreeable worke, was in S. Germins suburbs. In a most healthfull and delicious aire; consisting of noe lesse then ten akres of ground in one faire peece. There the vaste charitie of Paris sinds a large field to dilate it selfe vpon. And in verie deede, it seemes it will meete with worke enough for a longe tyme; since, as I am told, the designe is to build eight or ten faire large Halls, all

K vj

228 The pietie of Paris. to be furnished with bedds, as we fee at presente, with comlie white fustian courtins with each one a strawe bedd, a feather bedd, and a good quilte; togeither with an altar to enery Hall, where those impotent people may heare Masse in their bedds. Of all these designed Halls, there are, as yet, onely foure perfected. And yet the judicious beholder of the statelinesse, and foliditie, of what is alreadie compleated, will easilie iudge it was not compassed for a litle. Sed charitas omnia Sperat. And the excellent Administratours of the place, are yearly improuing the reuenues; as well by common charities, which by their fingular ind pro of of free

felf and muc pur

whi to p gard hole

lelu grez not mol

their nes, tym

rely

ful

The pietie of Paris. 229 industrie and dexteritie, they procure, as by the addition of their owne meanes; some of them paying 1500. liures french or 150. pistolls for himselfe and his man per annum, and freely contributing as much more yearelie out of pure charitie; besides 3000.1. which he gaue the first yeare to plainte and beautifie the garden. So farre are those holy men from rayfing themselues a fortune out of their great places, that they doe not take a competent, and most iust lively-hoode for their continuall cares and paines, but euen pay for it, fine tymes ouer. So that their purely charitable, and fuccessefull labours, togeither with

ith

ins

dd,

boc

21-ofe

are all

ere

er-

sie, Ire.

filie

nnia

Ad-

are

eue-

cha-

ular

230 The pietie of Paris. their owne liberalities, highten their hopes to fuch adegree, that they confidently propose to themselues, to extende that pious foundation which was first made for a douzen onely (fixe men, and sive women) to foure hundred. Nor will it be much to be doubted of (if God grant life to those admirable Prouisours, in whose management the place now florishes) fince by their care, liberalitie and prosperous endeuours, they have abreadie, in a fewe yeares, multiplied twelue to 160. which are imployed at present. If the rest be once accomplished, it may justly be stiled the non such of France, and the world, for wholfome aire gula mia thin

and

four year pref

mer Par to the

mor mak besi

in a The

The pietie of Paris 231 aire; magnificent Halls; fingular order; good diete; amiable treatement, in all thinges behooffull for body and foule.

letly

to da-

111-nto

ant

010-

age-

litie

ars,

fewe

e to

d at ully

ances

ome

And indeede Gods bliuings haue abreadie so visibly appeared vpon this holy foundation, that fince the yeare 1637. as aboue, till this present yeare 1666. it is augmented by the charities of Paris, in point of buildings, to the value of 500. thousand french liures; and as much more in foundatio of beddes: making in all, a french millio, besides sixtie thousand liures in annuall reuenues.

That parte which relates to the bodily care of the incurables, and the continuall

The pietie of Paris 232 affistances which are necessarie for those poore creatures which are incapable, in the least to helpe themselues, is performed by good young men (as to the poore men), who out of deuotion subject themselues to that abiecte imployement, taking a reafonable confideration for that holy and hard seruice: and as to the women, there are modest secular maydes, who complie with the like good offices, with much religion, sweetnesse and compassion.

who

pow

Hano

uice

geit.

W

Vica

char

the p patri

that giue

thoul

tiont

Worth

the v

Sacra fe

folute

amon

Ipiritu

The other dutie which concernes their foules, is aboundantly discharged, by the continual follicitudes of a companie of most pious preists, who live in the place, to be readie vpon every call, and

The pietie of Parie. 233 who are so absolutly freefrom all selfe-interest, that they powre out their owne substance, in that Christian feruice, in lieu of gathering togeither any riches therby.

132

12.

res

the

, is

ung

n), iect

im-

alo-

hat

and

are

who nod

1011 on.

con=

1111-

0000

:0m=

ifts,

o be

Wienesse Mr despond the Vicar who hath the cheife charge of the spiritualitie of the place, who out of his owne patrimonie (in a feweyeares that he has lived there) hath giuen the house aboue 12. thousand liures; with lintention to leave his faire and well choysen librarie, which is worth 10. thousand more for the vse therof. So that auri sacra fames which hath so abfolute a raigne in the world, among them is turned, to a spirituall prodigalitie, and holy strife to outuie each other. In a word, the beautifull contriuance of the whole buildinge; the maiestie of the Halls (which might rather feeme to be Louures, then lodgings fore poore distressed people) the excellencie of the fituation, and the odour Gstheadmirable charitie practifed therin, delightfully allure persons of great worth and honoursto reside there, as Abbots Counfellours &c. who after they have given ample testimonies of their abilities, in profitably seruing the publike the best of their yeares, know to make a holy retreate, and to facrifice vp the honorable rest of what they sometymes were, to Good fance then whice liue: pital pieti Mof

234 The pietie of Paris.

to the Bisho of the Whice the H with ction wayes his at neuer be re plaine Henc

The pietie of Paris. 235 God alone, in that denoute fanctuarie, where they build themselues noble quarters, which are looked vpon as donationes inter Viuos, during their liues, to be left to the Hofpitall, as monuments of their pietie, after their deathes. Most worthily may be added to these, that most famous Bishope of Bellay, that louer of the poore and pouertie, which he truly practifed: for tho he did not actually line with them, yet did his affection and approbation, alwayes accompaignie them, his ambition, as he oft faid, neuer going higher, then to be reputed a poore Chaplaine of that holy familie. Hence he left them what he

0-uil-

the ther

10d= lour

pra-

rorth

ere,

8cc.

oinen

their

ruing

their

holy

ce VP

what

2 10

had, and the relikes of what he had bene, to be interred in their Church. Requiescatin pace of divers other charities which I cannot so wel particularise.

ARTICLE XXXII

If here I make an end, it is not for want of matter further to inlarge my felfe, but for want of tyme and health to informe my felfe of the particulars: for I am not ignorant, that there are many other excellentworkes of charitie exercised in Paris. As in that Hospitall of the Racquett in the Suburbs of S. Antonies which depends vpon a nother in the towne, behind the place

roya of gi

infiri ties much

afford good

I kn house rities

men,
newly
in S.
other

They they thes !

through

The pietie of Paris. 237 royall: gouerned by a copanie of good nuns of S. Augustines order, who receive a many good burgesses, in their infirmities and incommodities, and treate them with much charitie and goodnesse, affording the hansome bedds, good diet, and all thinges necessarie.

the din

pare ich I

le.

1, it

atter

elfe,

and

feot

mnot

many fcha-

Asin

quett

tonies

other

place

I know there are other two houses, effects of the late charities of Paris. The one for men, the other for women newly conuerted. The first in S. Victors suburbs: the other neere S. Eustaches. They are taken in, and maintayned gratis for three monthes space at least, to be throughly instructed, and containing the state of the truth.

238 The pietie of Paris.

I remember also, that aboue 20. yeares agoe, there came a good Lady (from Bourdeaux as I am told) to Paris, called Madamel'Estang, with a harte as full of good will to doe workes of common charitie, as hands emptie of meanes to performe it. Yet God hath so blessed her pious endeuours among the Good people of Paris, that she has procured subsistance for 250. poore young maydes, (which her care hath gathered togeither) who by her graue prudence, are modestly and christianly bredd, and carrefully kept out of harmes way. to which that fexe, and those greene yeares, are but too incident.

day tau to f

of a inab wine their marc at rel the v

profe particular are combered ancier felues To

fed p Hospi ferred

The pietie of Paris. 239 All Paris knowes, and sees daylie, multitudes of girles, taught (for meere charitie) to serue God, to reade, to write, to worke diuers kinds of workes, wherby they are inabled to become good houfwives at home, or to gaine their liuelyhood among the marchands. And this as well at religious houses, especially the vrsulaines, whose proper profession it is, as in divers particular cogregatios (which are common all ouer Paris) where good widdowes, and ancient matrons, deuote theselues to that pious care. To conclude, poore distresoue

ame

ur-

with

llto

cha-

Yet

ehas

250.

phich

d to

gralle

y and

carre

s way

thok

00 in-

To conclude, poore distressed people of the generall Hospitall, the otherwise deserted gallie-slaues, and the 240 The pietie of Paris desolate prisoners, often experience the comfortable vifites of the noblest Ladyes of Paris, who folace the first with their affabilitie and pious discourse, and, often tymes, deliuer the latter, by paying the summe for which they were imprisoned. These thinges, I beleeue, will be farre from being paralled by the protestats practises. How beit there are yet others that much further outspeake the, which for breuities fake I will onely point at.

dot

whi

to (

ders

ples

thof

mon

whol

decr

and

Tert

pollid

of old.

found

dome

cified

nener

Observations to be made of other great workes of pietie.

ARTICLE XXIX.

S OME of the greatest arguments of true pietie, zeale

The pietie of Paris 241 zeale and religion, especially towards God, I have not yet touched. For what indeede doth antiquitie deliuer vs which speakes more honour to God, and the noble founders, then the erection of temples dedicated to his name; those royall and permanent monumets of primitiue zeale. whose venerable old lookes decrye prophane noueltie, and prescribe against it, with Tertulians prior possideo, olim possideo: I possesse first, I possesse of old. Whose verie exteriour forme (which is ordinarily found the same all christendome about) preaches a crucified God, in a filent languadge, which herefie could nener refute, faue onely by ex-

Vi-

res

frst

ous

es,

ing

nev

nine

irre

the

beit

uch

hich

nely

other

far=

etie,

242 The pietie of Paris the new way of pulling them downe.

feer

ced.

Studi

And !

1. The

2. Port

J. Vall

Hence it was , that the wifest of kinges, Salomonithe greatest of Emperours, Constantine the great: the Peerelesse Emperesse his mother, Helena; and Edgar the most religious of our kinges (wherof the three last are the incomparable ornaments of our olim holy Hand) commended the memorie of their most renowmed pietie (to omitte millions of others) in pointe of building Temples, to perpetuall posteritie.

In this point what glorious aduantages could I not meete with, should I prosequute it to the full: How rare and leane fruites hath England

The pietie of Paris. 243 seene in this kind, in 100. yeares and vpwards, that is, euer since the young birth of protestancie? while the Catholike pietie of Paris, in thirtie yeares space, hath produced at least 40. considerable churches and chapells (with faire Monasteries to the most of them) which I am able to giue a catalogue of, without stirring my foote out of my studie, to inquire them out.

And firsts in S. Iames his suburbs are these which follow.

nem

Wi-

011=

Pee-

her,

nost

herm

four

most

itte ointe

rete

ite it

211d

land

^{1.} The Institution of the Oratoire.

^{4.} The Fuliantines. . The Vrselines. 6. The Visitation. 2. Port-Royall.

^{3.} Vall de Grace.

244 The pietie of Paris:

In Germains Suburbs.

32. T

tes

difie

there

fores

lar th

mon

queel Igaol

Work

the Ie

Areete

15 jud millio

more

I paring

12. Chasse Midy 7. Caluaire. 8. The Carmes. 12. The Incurables 9. The Iesuits No- 14. Belchace. 15. The Jacobins uiship. 10. The misericorde 16. The Petits Au-11. The dixe Vertue gustins.

In S. Mercels suburbs. 17. The misericorde 18. The Pitié.

In the Vniuersitie

19. S. Stephens 22.S. Nicolas, nov reedified a nev makeing all a 20. The Sorbon, new. 21. Clarmont 23. Bon Enfans.

In the Isle de Nostre-Dame.

24. S. Lovis.

In the Isle de Palais. 25. The Bernabits.

In S. Honories Suburbs.

26. Villeuesque. 29. The Feulliens. 27. Conception 30. S. Rock.

28. The Assumption.

The pietie of Paris. In the towne it selfe.

21. The Oratorians 36. The Carmelites 32. The litle Augustins: 33. Filles de S Thorables

s Au-

, 107

me.

34. The Carmelites

35. S. Eustace ree-

Rue Chapon, 37. The Tesuites S. Antoine.

38. The Visitation S. Antoine 39. The Minimes

40. The Carmes Mitigez.

And note by the way, that there are fiue or fixe of the foresaid churches, in particular that of Val de Grace, the monument of a most pious queene, and the worldes Paragon: that of Sorbon, the worke of the vnparelled Cardinal Richelieu. And that of the Iesuites in S. Antonies streete, wherof the first (which is judged to have cost some millions) is able to pay fore more churches (to speake sparingly) the all England has

CHELL Trucks

226 The pietie of Paris.

built since the fall of Catholike religion. A royall munificence! worthy of the daughter, the wife, the fifter, the mother of a kinge: a Deodatus or child of miracle: and grand - mother of a kingly issue. And yet that which outspeakes all, is that this vast ad holily profuse liberalitie, in this kind, hindered her not bountifully to ope her had to the needie, and to stretche out herpalmes to the poore, so that she was obserued (by faithfull and knowing persons)annually to cotribute twétie, or twentie two thousad pistolls, with her ownerovall hands, to the poore and necessitous, those living, and better Temples of God. And as to the rest, wheras I in my chamber, without further inquil fort firm versi there I ead it made ber, and m from the church

eite alin
thing proofe

Non for the in the inftly h lives o

The pietie of Paris. 247 quisition, counte but voon fortie, others better able to stirre abroade, and so better. versed in the towne, make noe difficultie to affirme, that there are many more, which I eafily beleeue. How foeuer it may be, as to the iust number, the number I have specified is most certainly true, and ministers most just occafion to me, to fay to your church, what S. Augustine faid to the Donatists, producite aliquid simile, produce some thing like to this, for the proofe of your pietie.

nifi-

igh-

the

da-

and

ngly

out-

, in

not e neem

ces to

er-

ving

bute

ufad

oyall

ne-

and

And

nmy

er In

Now if thus much be faid for the pietie which appeares in the walls, what might not inftly be faid, for the religious lines of the heauenlie inha-

L iiij

248 The pietie of Paris.

habitants? who endeuouring to followe Christs counsell (which certainlie was not giuen by wisdome it selfe to fall fruitlesse to the ground; to be neglected by all men, to be imitated by none) of a more perfect way of life then the meere keeping of the com mandementes, went and fold, or abandonned, all that they had, and all that they could hope for, in this poore world to become therby the poore of Christ, and tooke vp their Crosse, that is, a penitentiall life; gaue it to the poore, and followed him, by imitating his diuine chastitie, pouertie and obedience, as farre forth as by his grace, they are capable therof. Who have but one our tation terion

meun thyn fensi their appli fession and gereise heau and cause of Go

is inti Mona led b

illustri of G

The piotie of Paris. 249 one harte, and one foule in our Lord: one comon habitation, one purse, one panterie: and liue at fuch a distance from any reall proprietie, that those colde wordes meum & tuum, myne and thyne (the fourse of all difsension) are banished out of their focietie. Whose whole application, as well by profession as practise, is to God and godly-tudies: whose exercise is to pray, and singe heauenly Pfalmes, Hymnes, and caticles before the throne of God day and night: in a worde, whose conversation is intirely in Heauen. Hence Monasticall persons are styled by S. Cyprian, the most illustrious parte of the church of God: by S. Ambrose an

ring

gi-

e to

ınd;

ien,

ofa

hen

om"

they

ould

oore

their

,and

ating

ertie

forth

ca-

e but

250 The pietie of Paris imitation in earth of the Angells in heauen and S. Augustine, breaten backe by the glorious luster of their Angellicall practises, professeth, that having a myndeto prayle them, he dare not vndertake it, because expression, saithhe, would fayle him. The like fayling might I much more iustly feare, should I aduenture to prayse (whom, in passing by, I onely ayme to point at) those infinite numbers of Religious men, and holie virgins, who adorne Paris at this day, with the like sublime pietie and sa-Aitie, as he magnified in his tyme, in the Catholike church when he prouoked the Manichies to reprehend, if they could, those manners, that life, that order, that institute (which he

97301

for

God

in ca

ners,

nes,

corre

naug| perfit

faults

luffere

remay

The pietie of Paris. 251 had described in his booke de moribus Eeclesie Catholice) and not still to goe on in vainely boasting of our chaffe, toblind men, who are not capable to iudge of light, With him therfor I will conclude with you, humbly befeeching you for Gods loue, not to give further eare to your mens flaunders of the Catholike church in catching an occasion, by the reprehension of their maners, whom she also condemnes, and continually striues to correct, as being the faultes of naughtiechildre. & yet if they persiste in their wichedesse, or euen adde more greeuous faults to the former, they are fuffered not withstanding to remayne in our Lords field, u-

the

el-

yle

y,I

with

d få

ırch

ani-

juld,

252 The pietie of Paris.

and to growe vp with the good feede, according to Christsorder in the gospell: suffer both to grow vntill the harnest: but a tyme will come, that the cockle shall be separated, and the pure wheate shall be purged from the chaffe. In the interim, deare Sr, I leaue your equitie to judge, whether it appeare not a kind of impudence(as faith S. August) in your men, to feeke, and as it were, to exacte, that perfection in our loofer members, and even in the chaffe of our Church (therby to seduce the ignorant) when they, the while, shew not, in the least measure, the same perfection, in theirs, to those whom they seduce.

ood sor-both ut a the and pur-the your trap-ce(as en, to acte, mem-fe of ce the choice thole

